KING IS CROWNED: 'GOD SAVE KING'

FAIR Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Although Mussolini insists that Fascism is not an export commodity and Hitler says the same of his type of lunacy, there comes a point in their relations with the free countries when they try to impose their peculiar ideas on the neighbors. They both presume to suggest, even demand, that freedom of speech and freedom of the press be curtailed in countries which guarantee such freedom.

Inasmuch as impaired or limited freedom in these matters isn't freedom at all, what they require of us is the abolition of two very important rights. It makes no difference to them whether we and the British do this by violating our existing laws or by changing the laws in violation of our principles.

They tell us what we have to do and leave the details to us, which is generous of them, to be sure.

The recent La Guardia affair was an instance of interference. It may be true that he was only campaigning when he said Hitler would shame (See PEGLER, Page 2)

JUDGE SLAPS COP PLAN

A proposal to increase Santa Ana's police department staff by two motorcycle officers likely will meet with objections from City Judge J. G. Mitchell.

The Journal learned today that the matter is scheduled to be discussed at a meeting of the city traffic safety commission set for Friday afternoon.

Judge Mitchell refused to be quoted on the situation today, saying he preferred to cross bridges when he got to them. However, he had planned to attend the meeting of the commission.

The city council is planning to increase the police force by two motorcycle officers. This probably will not be done until after the start of the new fiscal year, Police Chief Floyd W. Howard said today. It is felt that the city needs more motorcycle officers on duty, particularly from midnight to morning.

The objection of Judge Mitchell to the addition of the officers was said to lie in the fact that he believes he has all the traffic cases now that he can handle.

The safety commission is expected to make a recommendation to the city council regarding the proposed increase.

I don't believe there's a country in the world where good sportsmanship is appreciated as much as it is over here. People'll pack a stadium to see a good fighter and they'll cheer him as long as he fights fair, but the minute he does anything unsportsmanlike the whole audience will rise up in a body and boo him.

I had one uncle, my Uncle Orie, who never amounted to very much because he was always gettin' into fights, but I always admired him because he had such a sense of honor and fair play. A big bully down home picked on Uncle Orie one time and my uncle challenged the big man to a duel with pistols. The big man says, "That wouldn't be fair because I'm so much easier to hit than you are."

Uncle Orie says, "Well, you take a piece of chalk and you mark my size on your body and if I hit outside the chalk mark, it don't count!"

FIRST LOCAL CHARTER IS RECEIVED

Initial Campaign Will Be Among Packing House Employees

A new drive to organize citrus workers of Orange county was launched today by officers of the new Citrus Workers' Union No. 20539, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

President Norris Stone of the Orange County Labor Council confirmed the fact today that the union has had its charter installed under the American Federation of Labor banner. It is the first citrus union in the county to get such a charter.

Packers First
With their charter installed and the right to organize guaranteed under the Wagner labor act, the union is starting a drive to organize Orange county's thousands of workers engaged in the citrus industry, union leaders said today.

The union will concentrate at the present time on the organization of packing house and juice plant employees, regardless of sex, color or creed, it was announced.

Purposes Told
Purpose of the union as outlined in the preamble of the charter, is the "fostering and encouragement of a higher degree of skill and efficiency, the cultivation of friendship and fellowship among its members; a reduction in the hours of labor, thereby securing for the members more time for rest, recreation and study; the adoption of a wage scale providing an adequate remuneration for labor performed, and the elevation of the moral, intellectual, social and economic condition of the workers."

Members of the union's publicity committee announced a mass organization meeting to be held at the Labor Temple, 402 West Fourth street, Santa Ana, Friday evening at 8 o'clock. A speaker from the labor council will welcome the workers and explain facts about organized labor.

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The house firmly and finally rejected today President Roosevelt's recommendation for a permanent Civilian Conservation Corps. It passed and sent to the senate instead a bill to extend the CCC for two years only.

The bill passed on a roll call vote, 385 to 7. Shortly after the house voted the two-year extension, the senate labor committee recommended to the senate that the CCC be extended permanently. There was no indication when the senate would take up the bill.

Administration leaders in the house made no attempt to reverse the ballot by which an insurgent membership voted overwhelmingly yesterday to retain the agency on a temporary basis.

FILM STRIKE SEWER FIGHT AID SOUGHT GROWS HOT

Seamen's Unions Asked To Lend Support to Movie Walkout
Decision on Repair of Outfall Line Asked By Santa Ana

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Film strike leaders maintained an optimistic attitude today as they awaited responses from two powerful marine unions whose cooperation they requested.

"This strike will be militantly pressed to a triumph," said Charles Lessing, business manager of the striking Federation of Motion Picture Crafts.

The Screen Actor's Guild, whose demands for a "guild shop" and better wages and working conditions for extras and minor players, moved to improve the status of the lower strata of its membership. Guild officers said they will work out a plan to prune the long lists of extras registered at the Central Casting Bureau so bonafide extras "can earn a decent living."

As Lessing reiterated his hope that 2,000,000 workers would join in picketing the nation's film theaters before the end of the week, Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers' Union, announced in Detroit that members of his union will picket theaters of the automobile city beginning tomorrow.

Federated Motion Picture Crafts leaders asked the maritime Federation of the Pacific and the International Longshoremen's Association for help in the craft's fight for union recognition and a closed shop. If the maritime unions heed the request, they would refuse to load location-bound ships with film company equipment and personnel.

PILOTS BLAMED FOR 2 CRASHES

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The commerce department gave its opinion today that errors by pilots were responsible for two airplane crashes near Newhall, Calif., in which 14 persons were killed and eight injured.

The first of the accidents involved a United Airlines transport plane, flying from Oakland to Los Angeles, on Dec. 27, 1936. All nine persons aboard were killed. The other was a Western Air Express liner, flying between Salt Lake City to San Diego, on Jan. 12, in which five persons, including Martin Johnson, the explorer, were killed and eight injured.

Mercury Headed For High Mark At 5:15 Today

It may be hot now, but it's likely to be hotter at 5:15. That is, if yesterday's temperature is any indication. The mercury rose to 84 at 11:40 this morning, but it was 89 at 5:15 yesterday.

Lowest temperatures recorded were 56 at 5:15 a. m. today, and 55 at 5:15 a. m. yesterday.

DUKE, WALLY HEAR RITES ON RADIO

Wedding of Abdicated King to U. S. Woman To Be in June

MONT'S, France. (AP)—The Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield will postpone their wedding until early June, friends said today, because of "certain differences between the royal family and the British government."

The disclosure came while the duke sat before a radio listening to the coronation of his brother, King George. The coronation that would have been his own but for his abdication to permit his marriage to Wallis Warfield.

A special radio installed in the writing room of the duke's suite

Queen Enjoys 'Coronation Day' in S. A.

Traffic was stopped in downtown Santa Ana this morning as the Queen and her retinue arrived on Coronation day and took up their station at the principal business intersection of Fourth and Main streets.

The Queen was a queen bee, surrounded by hundreds of her workers and drones, stirred to travel by the summery weather that broke today.

Wary bystanders watched as E. F. Marks, local bee keeper, arrived with an empty hive and smoker and coaxed the queen and her followers into a more suitable "palace."

Marks, who lives at 1125 North Bristol, maintains an apiary in La Cruz canyon.

BY-PRODUCTS ITALY SPURNS POOL HIT CORONATION

Associations Object To Agreement and Leave Program
Newspapers, on Orders Of Duce, Ignore News Of British Event

Operation of the citrus by-products pool had collapsed today, according to citrus officials. Several provisions in the pool agreement which were not looked upon with favor by some packing house managers have brought about withdrawal of six packing associations in Orange county and others outside the county, it was learned.

Enough associations have withdrawn to make operation of the by-products pool impossible, it was stated by Manager John E. Dunn of the Anaheim Citrus association, who said that his house, with the Anaheim Community growers, the Associated Anaheim growers, Fullerton Mutual, Edington Fruit company and Orangeflower Citrus association, have withdrawn from the pool.

Dunn said the provisions of the by-products pool agreement objected to include the fact that culls must run 15 per cent or less frost damage the same as in the case of good fruit, and that the pool is operated in conjunction with fruit from Tulare county.

The associations that have withdrawn object mainly to the fact that the provisions prevent sending lots of oranges to juicing concerns, it was stated, and that the fruit instead goes to the dump. The pool is operated by the California Fruit Growers exchange. A similar pool was operated last year.

Irish Free State Ignores Crowning

DUBLIN, Irish Free State. (AP)—The Irish Free State did not see a coronation celebration today for the first time in 800 years of struggle with Great Britain. Not a single British flag was reported flying in Dublin, Cork, Limerick and Waterford.

The capital was quiet after anti-coronation demonstrations yesterday.

EMPIRE PAYS HOMAGE TO MONARCH

'Greatest Show in 1000 Years' Held Without A Visible Flaw

By FRANK H. KING
LONDON. (AP)—The empire that no night can darken crowned and consecrated its ruler, George VI, and his Scottish queen, Elizabeth, today in a solemn and beautiful ritual from down the proud centuries.

Peak of the greatest show in a thousand years, the Archbishop of Canterbury, venerable, erect, gave to the new king the crown that symbolizes the rule of 500,000,000 souls in almost a quarter of the earth.

Edward Listens In
Across the channel in a Touraine hunting lodge, Edward of Windsor, the man whose abdication made George VI king, listened by the side of Wallis Warfield to a broadcast of the ritual.

Then—just as the peak of solemn abbeys consecration, his friends disclosed that he and Mrs. Simpson have delayed their marriage until early June, because the royal family, desiring a public wedding, has disagreed with the British government, which wants a strictly private one.

Two-Hour Ceremony
Speaking slowly and clearly, with no hint of impediment, the grave-eyed monarch in the abbey accepted the throne of Britain and pledged himself to a just and honest rule.

The two-hour ceremony was climaxed when the 41-year-old sovereign was lifted reverently to the throne, in the sight of 7500 peers and peeresses, foreign rulers, diplomats and statesmen from all over the world.

Outside the abbey, a million or more cheered.
Guns in the Tower of London boomed.

Queen Anointed
Church bells pealed to signal that the priceless jeweled crown of St. Edward has been placed on the brow of George VI.

Queen Elizabeth, his Scottish-born wife, then was anointed and crowned in a brief ceremony immediately following the coronation of the king.

There was not a visible flaw in the coronation of the king.

At just half past twelve (3:30 a. m. Santa Ana time), the archbishop amid a solemn hush in the splendor of the abbey scene, lifted the jeweled symbol of the British throne, held it with outstretched arms towards the heavens, and placed it gently on the head of the man who chose to rule in his brother's stead.

Princesses See Rites
Throughout the ceremony, 11-year-old Princess Elizabeth, heiress presumptive to the throne, gravely and intently watched the impressive ritual which may some day make her Britain's first reigning queen since Victoria.

Put Elizabeth's little sister, blue-eyed Princess Margaret Rose, too young to maintain a lasting decorum, squirmed and wriggled like any 6-year-old in Sunday school class.

Outside the abbey, in the crush of humanity lining every inch of space along the six-mile processional route, more than three score spectators fainted and one youth died, in a fight in Piccadilly Circus in which 20 others were injured.

CITRUS GROWERS TAKING SEVERE LOSS FROM FROST DAMAGE

ESTIMATE ON INJURY IS RAISED

Report Northern Area To Salvage 40 Per Cent of Crop

Half of Orange county's valencia crop was damaged by the January frosts to such an extent that it is unmarketable. In the northern part of the county where there were few orchard heaters, citrus growers as a whole will be fortunate if they salvage 40 per cent of their crop, according to Manager John E. Dunn of the Anaheim Citrus association.

Dunn estimated that the average damage would run as high as 60 per cent. Some lots of fruit have been handled, he said, in which only 4.5 to 8.5 per cent of the fruit was found to be marketable.

Damage Spotted
Throughout the county the valencia season is far enough along now to enable packing house managers to get a more accurate picture of the damage wrought by the severe frozes of January.

Damage, as was known, was extremely spotted. Some lots of fruit have shown as high as 85 per cent damage in this section, others but as little as three per cent. Fruit damaged by the frost is withheld from usual markets.

Considering the extreme temperatures of January, Orange county can consider itself fortunate if half the fruit is shipped. Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs pointed out today. However, he said, indications point to a banner year for next season.

Extreme Care Urged
Tubbs said that unless extreme care is exerted by marketing agencies to see that no frozen fruit is placed on the market, a drop will result in Orange county's average annual income of $17,000,000 from valencia oranges.

Reports from persons who just returned from the Midwest reaching Tubbs showed that consumers have become dissatisfied over purchases of some California navel, which were dried out from having been frozen. It was pointed out that in the case of valencias, it is highly important to maintain consumer satisfaction.

Tubbs planned to hold an oral examination today to select five more agricultural inspectors for standardization work in the county. The men will be selected from those that have passed written examinations.

Now there are four state men, four county men on full time and four men spending part of their time on standardization work.

Two Fatalities At Coronation

LONDON. (AP) — Ambulances pushed their way through swarming coronation crowds today to help the thousands who collapsed in the crush. A young man and a child died.

Up to 1 p. m. ambulance brigades had treated 7066 persons. Of these, 107 cases were described officially as "serious" and 87 of the victims were taken to hospitals.

The remainder were of minor character, such as fainting and exhaustion.

MORE ABOUT DUKE, WALLY

Britain should accord Edward "fair treatment" at the wedding. "A number of members of the royal family believe the marriage should be public," this informant said. "The government insists it should be a private affair."

George and Mary's stand, he added, was that Edward, as a former king and former Prince of Wales who served his country for many years, is entitled to great consideration.

Special Request
King George sent Edward a special request to postpone the wedding until the differences are settled. It was disclosed.

The request was delivered by plane by Lord Brownlow, former attendant to Edward, and one other Englishman Sunday.

Windsor accepted the request, delaying the tentative plans for a wedding soon. The duke and Wallis still are working over an invitation list. It was considered highly uncertain whether the Duke of Kent or other members of the royal family would attend.

Bestowal of the crown on George removed the last hindrance to Windsor's marriage with Mrs. Warfield.

Phonics Congratulations
Still a loyal member of the royal family and a faithful subject of the new king, Edward coupled his telephoned wishes for success to George last night with congratulations to Queen Elizabeth.

Finally, he spoke for a few moments to Queen Mother Mary. Today, while George received the acclaim of empire, Edward remained alone with Mrs. Warfield and their American friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers.

Tonight he is expected literally to see the ceremony. A motion picture of the London street scenes and the actual coronation in the abbey was reported to have been ordered especially for Windsor, rushed to Monte by airplane as soon as the ceremony ended.

Nero out of a chamber of horrors, or whatever it was that he did say, but unless you are going into a question of etiquette, Fiorillo's position was sound.

However, our laws don't deal with etiquette. Mayor La Guardia was way inside the law and if it comes to a matter of etiquette, our little chestnut-stabber would have been justified if he had turned on Coriell Hull and given him the rough side of his tongue for apologizing to Hitler in the name of the national government.

He could have said to Mr. Hull: "Listen, you, what do you mean deprecating the conduct of a lawfully elected mayor of New York? Mind your own business."

And he would have been in the right, because, as Mr. Hull, himself, pointed out to Adolf, the national government has neither authority nor responsibility in the subdivisions of the sub-divisions. The national government is so fastidious about their independence that it doesn't even tax their official salaries.

Mussolini hasn't given us any trouble, but he has been needing the British for a couple of years. His press, like Hitler's, is strictly official. No Italian or German newspaper dares print anything contrary to instructions or omit anything sent down from the press-and-propaganda bureau with the "Must" stamp on it.

So when Mussolini's papers print dirty pieces about the British and even incite riots around the British embassy in Rome as they have done, those pieces are really state documents and the official sentiments of Popeye himself. On the other hand, when a British paper plucks a little fuzz off Popeye's chest and blows it in his face with a reference to Adowa or Caporetto, or the dashing retreats of the Black Shirts in Spain, that is an independent utterance.

The reason Mussolini burns up at these references is that he has spent 14 years trying to make the world and Italy think of the Italians as conquerors. But the British government isn't responsible. The cabinet members probably do set some private enjoyment out of these reminders of occasions when the invincible legions ran like hares, but they know every nation has its own raw spots. The only difference is that Mussolini can't take it. He can dish it, but he can't take it at all.

After La Guardia tossed off his crack about Adolf, the Nazi press turned on the heat and the most flattering thing they said about the American people was that we were a race who kept our hats on indoors, put our feet on the table and spat chewing gum at the walls.

That was the official utterance of the Nazi government and there is no debate whatever on that point. Can you imagine what would have happened to any editor who had printed that remark without official approval?

Yet they are demanding that the country revoke freedom of speech to prevent unfriendly utterances by minor officials in the sub-divisions of the nation, and then they went further and threatened to interfere in our domestic affairs, although in their country Americans are forbidden by law to organize internal interference and don't care enough about Germany to do it anyway.

In both cases there is only one thing to do. The free countries must look them dead in the eye, stamp on their corns and tell them to go to hell. Otherwise they will run us ragged, apologizing, explaining, curtailing our rights until we shall be no better off than they.

FAIL TO AGREE ON PRORATE

Future of the tomato prorate in Southern California may rest today with a hundred Orange county growers, mostly Japanese.

Following a stormy session last night in the farm bureau hall, the Japanese decided to meet among themselves to try to agree on the prorate question, and then call another meeting with the prorate committee to announce their decision.

Most of last night's conferees opposed the prorate entirely as an all-season proposition. Included in the opposition were a number of Japanese from the San Fernando valley, where a similar meeting will be held tonight.

Four hours of discussion last night brought arguments on both sides, the older growers opposing the prorate at the first of the season and several of the younger ones upholding it.

In case Orange county growers did oppose the prorate, however, and the other six southern counties had a majority in favor of it, the prorate would go through, Mitchell said. The growers must report their stand to the prorate committee by May 27.

TO AIR SHELBY CASE HERE

Mrs. Margaret Fillmore and Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, sister and mother of Mary Miles Minter, former silent screen actress, will send their attorneys into Orange county superior court here Friday afternoon, according to notice filed here today.

Mrs. Fillmore is suing her mother, Mrs. Shelby, now a resident of Laguna Beach, in a dispute over title to the latter's home at 1350 Hillcrest drive, Laguna Cliffs.

The pair were questioned recently in Los Angeles as the grand jury reopened the William Desmond Taylor murder case of 15 years ago.

Miss Minter will be one of the key witnesses, Mrs. Shelby asserted.

Mrs. Shelby contends that, although the Laguna Beach property stands in the name of Margaret Fillmore, it was purchased with her own money.

A brother, Max W. Busselle of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and three sisters, Elsie Clark of Pittsburgh, Pearl Hogg of Port Worth, Texas, and Lela C. Greer of Berkeley, The will also provides for life care of Mrs. Wayne's mother, Mrs. Jennie Busselle of Santa Ana, a $5000 trust for the latter, and a $5000 trust for Mrs. Wayne's father-in-law, Fred M. Wayne.

Mrs. Bernice B. Wayne, prominent Santa Ana clubwoman who died last Friday at Laguna Beach, disposed of $71,500 in a will drawn only two months before her death, it was disclosed today.

A. W. Rutan, Santa Ana attorney, filed the will for probate in superior court today. The instrument indicated Mrs. Wayne's estate will show a value far in excess of the specific amounts named.

Her husband, Dean D. Wayne, owner of the Association Laboratorians at Anaheim, was killed a year ago in a tragic railroad crossing accident.

Mrs. Wayne's will sets up a trust for her son, Earl Wayne, 18, giving him income from the property and providing for release of the principal in amounts ranging from $2500 when he is 21 years of age to $25,000 when he becomes 35.

Requests include $1000 each to

MORE ABOUT SEWER

Habra and Placentia met last night and agreed to report tonight that they wish either to disband entirely or to rewrite the present agreement so that they may withdraw and have a sewage disposal plant of their own.

Buena Park sanitary district was not represented at the meeting, but tentative plans call for Buena Park to participate in the northern sewage system if it is built.

Grover C. Walters, Fullerton city engineer, said today that, although plans have not been worked out, on the basis of costs per capita in other places, a system for the four northern communities would cost less than their share of the cost of rebuilding the present outfall system.

Orange To Leave
Orange city council already has instructed Councilman J. E. Riley, its representative on the outfall board, to report tonight that Orange is going ahead with plans for its own sewage disposal plant and that it will not wish to use the joint line after about one year.

Anaheim has not taken definite action to withdraw, but its representatives are considering plans for the city's own plant and possibly favor disbanding the district.

Santa Ana will urge that the district remain intact, and not split up, pointing to the increase in costs to this city if the district disbanded, and to other difficulties which would ensue. The sewer job would cost Santa Ana around $200,000 if the city has to go it alone, and about half as much if the entire district joins in the project.

Hold Conference
Engineer Kennedy was in Santa Ana yesterday and conferred with Mayor Fred C. Rowland and Councilman Joseph P. Smith, who represents Santa Ana on the outfall sewer board. The officials went over figures in the report submitted recently by Kennedy.

Mayor Rowland said Santa Ana feels that if government aid on the sewer project is to be secured the project should be submitted

LONG TO GUARD BOURBON COIN

Harold M. Long, Santa Ana, will be the next treasurer of the Young Democrats of California, a state-wide organization.

Long was nominated for the state office at a caucus of Young Democrat clubs of Southern California along with other officers. The nomination is tantamount to election.

Other officers nominated included Worth Bernard, Los Angeles, president; Eunice Schmidt, Los Angeles, vice president, and Shirle Garrett, Eagle Rock, secretary.

The nominations were made to relieve the state convention of the work of naming officers. The state convention will be held on May 21, 22 and 23 at Santa Barbara.

A special meeting of the Santa Ana club will be held tonight in clubrooms in the Commercial National bank building to select delegates to the state convention. It was announced today by President Curtis Burrow. A delegation from Los Angeles is expected to attend the meeting.

Switch Tampering Case Hangs Fire

R. G. Griego, jailed on a felony charge of tampering with railroad equipment last week after he reported an open switch shortly before a southbound freight train would have been derailed, was still in the county jail today.

Griego almost had his choice of charges, but today he was awaiting preliminary hearing on a felony count instead of a misdemeanor.

The district attorney's office understood Griego would plead guilty to a misdemeanor. But Griego showed up in Santa Ana just court this morning with Attorney Maxwell Burke and wouldn't plead guilty.

So the felony count was reset for hearing May 24.

Immediately, he pointed out that Santa Ana must figure on its cost so that it can be figured in the budget for next year.

Santa Ana doesn't want to call a bond election for the necessary work if it can be avoided.

Walters pointed out today that all members of the sewer system except Santa Ana feel that vitrified clay pipe should be used in sewer lines because of the destructive effect of sewer gas on concrete.

Since all cities and sanitary districts owning the sewer must agree unanimously on a course of action, every attempt to repair the main outfall line has been blocked for more than a year.

MOBILIZE TO FIGHT AUTO DEATHS

Mobilization of a citizen army to fight the ever-increasing number of traffic casualties, was under way in earnest in Orange county today following organization here last night of the Orange County Safety council.

Alarmed at the motor car massacre, a dozen representative leaders from all sections of the county met at the invitation of Dr. C. G. Huston, chairman of the safety committee of the associated chambers of commerce, at the Green Cat cafe to hear Dr. George Winfield Scott, Los Angeles jurist and traffic expert.

"If we cannot approach the safety menace from a standpoint of civic duty, we ought to move to Germany, Italy or Russia, where the government takes care of the problem," Dr. Scott told the group, urging members to dedicate themselves to the prevention of highway accidents.

Plans approved by the gathering include contacting of all civic, service, business and religious organizations in the county for service membership in the safety council.

Another meeting will be held soon for members of the committee to report on what progress has been made in their respective communities toward knitting together a countywide campaign.

Outlining a plan of action, Dr. Scott advised the safety crusaders to inform themselves upon the various angles of the campaign, to get literature here for distribution, and to tackle the problem from a personal standpoint.

His remarks were backed up by A. L. Pryor, safety engineer from Los Angeles, who gave instances of the dangers which imperil the life, property and mental serenity of every automobile driver.

The drive will be conducted along educational as well as corrective lines, it was indicated in the discussion which followed.

Dr. Huston announced the addition of Col. M. B. Wellington to the Santa Ana delegation on the council.

THE HOME OF BETTER FURNITURE ON FOURTH AT SPURGEON, SANTA ANA

JAYSEE PLAY READY FOR CURTAIN

Parade, Bull Fight to Be Features in Big
Affair Friday

Tickets were on sale today for the Santa Ana Junior college fiesta play, "Lost Horizons" to be given Friday and Saturday nights in the high school auditorium. The performances begin at 8 o'clock.

Under the direction of Ernest Crozier Phillips, the dramatic play promises to be one of the most outstanding ever produced for Fiesta day celebrations. The play is still in manuscript form.

The play, by John Hayden, concerns the life of a young actress, Janet Evans, played by Virginia Wilson. It is an unusual plot in that it tells the story of the girl's life as it was and as it would have been had she not committed suicide.

Big Success

How her life affected the lives of several other people is brought out in the plot. The leading male part is being played by George Ball.

"Lost Horizons" has been given by the Community players in Pasadena. It was an outstanding success there because of its different method of presentation.

Although stage settings will not be elaborate, each scene will be lighted with spotlights, with fade-outs finishing them. There are 20 scenes in the production.

Ability Shown

In rehearsals this week, Miss Wilson has shown her ability as an actress to a remarkable degree. Her interpretation of the role of the ill-fated actress is expected to bring her into the limelight of Santa Ana amateur actors.

The complete cast includes Carolyn Ryan, Bob Paul, Betty Lee, Hugh Plumb, Marian Powell, Marvin Hinton, Catherine Eklund, Barbara Kiser, Joe Crawford, Joe Kobayashi, Ola Orrell, Harold Barrett, Harold Pottorff, James Doyle, Emery Steele, Joe Yocum, Bill Keeton, George Ball, June Beckstrand, Lawrence Trickett, Jerry Rowland, Edward Alberts, Isa Grace Young, Paul Martin, Waydine Siler, Paul Christ, Elmer Meyer, Edward Velarde and Dorothy Jane King.

Tickets are now on sale at the Santa Ana Book store and at the college office, Tenth and Main streets.

The fiesta, to be staged Friday, will entertain seniors from all Orange county high schools. There will be a parade, bull fight, beard growing contest and a dance.

Senate Honors Anderson Memory

Copy of the California senate resolution of respect on the death of John N. Anderson, four-time senator from this district, was received here today.

Anderson, who was chairman of the senate committee on education, was further honored by adjournment of the senate in his memory.

The resolution was introduced by Sen. Harry C. Westover of Santa Ana. A copy of the senate Daily Journal, containing the resolution was forwarded here by Joseph A. Beck, Balboa, secretary of the senate.

Elks Hear Jacobs' Mother Tribute

A "Tribute to Mother" was given before more than 150 local Elks last night when O. A. Jacobs observed this annual Elks custom by speaking at the meeting nearest Mother's day.

Police Report

Eight boys, their ages ranging from 8 to 13, were busy earning small change today. They were to pay it—55 cents apiece—to the Franklin school for several windows which have been broken there during the past few weeks. School authorities told police yesterday the boys had confessed and were to pay for the windows.

A purse found by George Gould, 2306 Spurgeon street, was returned by officers to Mrs. R. Castro, 1831 West Second street, who lost it. The purse, found at Fourth street and Broadway, contained $12.63.

A car owned by E. L. Myers, 411 Mortimer street, reported stolen from his home early yesterday, was found later on Wellington street.

A bicycle owned by Harold Livingston, 314 West Walnut street, was stolen yesterday afternoon from the high school.

AIRS 'PLOT' TO DESTROY BUSINESS

S. A. Shibley, the Mirakol Chemical company of which he is a part owner and officer, and Lulu D. Barbieri today sought in superior court to forestall foreclosure of a $3200 trust deed on grounds their business has been wrecked by a "conspiracy of major oil companies."

The suit started today was directed against the Anaheim First National bank and the Orange County Title company, holders of the trust deed.

Plant Attached

It declared that the company's land and plant have been attached by the Shell Oil company, and that because of the alleged unfair practices and conspiracy the firm has been prevented from operating and paying its obligation under the trust deed.

The action referred to a previous suit in which the Shell Oil company attached the Mirakol company plant and Highway 101 over an asserted debt of $1719.86 for oil and for royalties.

Shibley and the Mirakol company replied with a $2600,000 action against Shell, Standard, St. Helens and other oil companies and the California Spray Materials company, charging violation of federal anti-trust laws and state fair practices act.

Price Fixing

Shibley alleged that Shell refused to deliver oil he needed for citrus sprays unless he would sign an agreement to operate under patents held by the Spray Materials firm and to sell at fixed prices. He was told, he said, that the agreement would not be binding upon him.

Shibley added charges that the patents were fictitious and used merely as a device for fixing prices of spray oils. The suit was ordered transferred to the federal district court in Los Angeles last December.

URGES FULL FLOOD BOND ISSUE

To vote only the minimum $2,500,000 in bonds for the Orange county flood control program would be like having "a nice auto and no gasoline," R. B. Newcomb told the Forum for Political and Economic Education last night.

"If we decide a flood control program, without water conservation, is all we are interested in, we can get along on $2,500,000. The added million is our golden opportunity to complete both phases and get work worth $16,000,000."

Cites Dual Problem

Newcomb pointed out that there is a dual problem: of flood control and of water conservation.

"It is sensible only if it saves our wealth by preventing destruction of life and property, and if it adds to our wealth by conserving and adding to our water supply," he told the group.

He said the federal government in its offer to build dams and other works in the program is interested only in flood control, but that the county is vitally interested in water conservation.

Estimates Need

For that reason, he said, work on the river and creek channels, conservation conduits, and spreading grounds should be included in the program and the bond issue.

For these, he estimated, a full $3,500,000 will be needed.

Newcomb added that by voting the $3,500,000 which is mentioned in the omnibus flood control bill as the estimated cost of the county participation in the program, Orange county would play safe and avoid a hitch later.

County supervisors are divided on the point, Chairman Willard Smith feeling that $3,500,000 is needed, and Supervisor N. E. West expressing the view that only $2,500,000 need be voted to take care of rights of way for the series of dams in the program.

Outlines Program

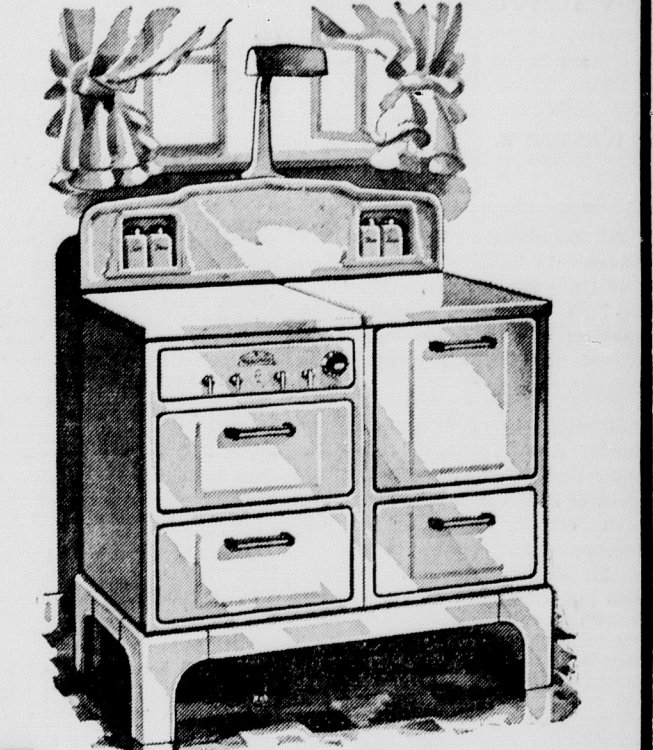

Newcomb, with Percy H. Budd, assistant county flood control engineer assisting with technical information, outlined the phases of the proposed program, which include not only the Prado dam, which will be the first step, but Brea dam and channel, Fullerton dam, Carbon canyon dam, Carbon canyon conduit, Brea conservation conduit, Fullerton relief channel, Fullerton conduit and conservation works, Santa Ana river channel project, Santiago dam and channel, Aliso dam, Trabuco dam and San Juan dam.

To the original Elliott plan have been added protection and conservation for Fullerton, and a proposal to carry off the flood waters from the city of Santa Ana, which now flood agricultural lands to the southwest, Newcomb pointed out.

Gem smuggling, once estimated to be a $50,000,000 business, has declined in recent years.

Townsend News, Views

By
WALTER R. ROBB

All members of the Santa Ana Townsend hall's administration board are asked to remember that at 7:30 tonight a special called meeting will be conducted. It is important that all members be present.

It might be of interest for the Santa Ana Townsend clubs to know that Peter F. Benthien, president of Santa Ana club No. 7, has been elected treasurer of the Townsend hall board to succeed A. M. Mapes, resigned. Benthien, who resides at 826 Cypress street, is well known in Santa Ana, having been engaged in the cafe business here for 7 1/2 years. Previous to coming to Santa Ana he was in the cafe business in the east. For 17 years he operated a newspaper distributing business in Arlington, N. J., and for 18 years in the same city he was treasurer of the Modern Woodmen of America and for a time was treasurer of the Elm Building and Loan Association of Arlington. It can be seen that Benthien is experienced in the work which he will now be called upon to do in assuming the treasurer's task of the Townsend hall board. A. M. Mapes and his wife are leaving the latter part of this week for a trip of four weeks into the state of Washington.

Word has come to the writer of the death of Mrs. George Pettit, well known and hardworking Townsendite of the Anaheim club. She passed away April 24 and was buried April 29 in the Buena Vista cemetery mausoleum in Fullerton. Mrs. Pettit was one of the early members of Anaheim club No. 4 and later, when the four Anaheim clubs merged into what is now called club No. 1, she transferred her membership to it. She leaves her husband, also a Townsend worker.

The Brea club now has a new meeting place located on the second floor of the 113 South Pomona street business building. This is only one door from where they have been meeting, except that it is now upstairs instead of on the ground floor. Next Friday evening this club will meet in the new location at 7:30 o'clock. The club president is Ezra E. Law.

District Manager J. H. Walsh and wife went to Riverside yesterday on Townsend business and Walsh spoke before a Townsend club there. Last Saturday evening he, Mrs. Walsh and daughter were in San Bernardino where Walsh addressed a Townsend gathering.

The 19th congressional Townsend district board met in regular session last Saturday afternoon to transact business for the Townsend clubs of the district. After the meeting, which was held at the meeting of 25 Townsend speakers from Riverside, San Bernardino and Orange counties was held in the 3556 Eighth street Townsend headquarters in Riverside. Those from Santa Ana who attended were Grant Henderson, Walter R. Robb, J. H. Walsh and Herbert F. Kenny. E. E. Proud of La Habra was also in the group. At the board meeting was John L. White of Laguna Beach. A similar meeting of Townsend speakers and club presidents was voted to be held on Saturday, June 5, at 2:30 p. m. in the Riverside headquarters. An interesting letter was read at the speakers meeting from Harry R. Sheppard, congressman, dealing with Townsend affairs.

Kenny announced at the speakers meeting that next Sunday, May 16, the 17th district, of which Kenny is manager, is sponsoring an excursion trip to Catalina Island where a Townsend mass meeting will be held. The steamship Catalina has been chartered for the trip and will carry passengers round trip to the island for $2 each if 100 make the trip. If less than that number, the fare will be $2.50 per passenger. According to Kenny, the Catalina will leave the Wilmington dock at 10 a. m., arriving at the island at 12 noon. The mass meeting will be held at 2 p. m. in Avalon park. Picnic lunches can be taken to the park if desired, and the Avalon club No. 1 will furnish coffee. At 4:30 p. m. the steamship will leave Catalina Island, docking at Wilmington at 6:30 p. m. This information is given as some Orange county folk are planning to make the trip.

Last Monday evening the Gardena chamber of commerce had Herbert F. Kenny of Santa Ana as its guest speaker. Kenny again assumed the master of ceremonies task for a two weeks period at the Blithmore theater. Townsend meetings in Los Angeles are held daily at 11:30 a. m. except Sunday, when the meetings are held at 1:30 p. m.

Tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock Walter R. Robb will speak for the Santa Ana Townsend club which meets every Thursday evening in the Roosevelt school building. W. D. Barnard, president, will preside. The public is welcome.

Frank Kendall was the speaker before Costa Mesa club No. 3 which met last evening in the elementary building of the Costa Mesa schools. The writer apologizes to Mrs. Lena Burdick, president of this club, for having forgotten to give notice of this meeting in last night's column.

NEW TRAFFIC BUREAU IS APPROVED

Measure Would Create Safety Engineering Body For State

SACRAMENTO (AP).—Creation of a bureau of traffic safety engineering in the department of public works is proposed in a measure approved yesterday by the assembly's motor vehicle committee.

The act sponsored by the California Safety Council was opposed by Frank Read of the motor vehicle department. It was called a duplication of work now being done in that department.

Henry Robinson, San Francisco, attorney for the council, declared a safety engineering bureau would make possible scientific studies of road building with a view of preventing accidents and that its work would not conflict with existing setups.

Assemblyman Yorty charged that the motor vehicle department's opposition was "somewhat political."

HARNESS GIVES FISHING HINTS

Many outdoor lovers who take delight in landing their limit of trout now are whipping Southern California streams, declares R. C. Harness, local manager of the Western Auto Supply company, fishing and sporting goods dealers.

While the opening of the season on May 1 found many streams a little roily, and lakes very high, many local anglers got their hand in early and took advantage of opening day opportunities," he said.

Bait and spinner fishing predominated, although many fish were taken on wet flies. One of the many Southland fishing spots which will be popular this year is Big Bear lake, where water is seven feet over the old dam and may rise even higher. Other Southland trout lakes and streams will be equally worthwhile this year. Even a few high Sierra spots are ready now, but it is expected most of them will reach their peak later. Bass lakes of San Diego county are open and provide plenty of sport for the fisherman who visits them. Of these, Henshaw lake has gained so much water this winter that it is now the largest in Southern California.

"Due to heavy planting by the state fish and game commission, and the high waters from a wet winter, fish are plentiful and scrappy, so every experienced angler who wants his share of sport will be sure that he is amply prepared in every way, by checking over his whole outfit before setting out," Harness said.

"In doing this, probably the first step is to pick up all the tackle that was loaned to friends and never returned," Harness added with a smile, for often tackle is loaned in the fall that the borrower forgets to return.

With your outfit together, he advises careful testing of lines to be certain that the ends which get wet have not rotted. Reels should be cleaned and oiled, and rods should be checked for broken guides and loose ferrules.

OIL FIRM ASKS PUBLIC ADVICE

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Public, including Junior who drives his own or the family vehicle, were recently called into consultation with the sales forces of Associated division, Tide Water Associated Oil company, during a series of meetings held throughout the Pacific coast, according to Harold R. Deal, manager of advertising and sales promotion for the company.

Taking a representative cross-section of petroleum users, this consumer survey afforded many enlightening and helpful suggestions to the Associated sales force, Deal states.

Ten persons, ranging from high school or junior college boys to bank officials and from stenographers to housewives, were called upon to express their ideas regarding gasoline and oil consumption, service station equipment, facilities and service. The consumers were interviewed by Deal and Walter Brunn, Associated's merchandising manager.

Typical queries presented the consumers included such as the following: What services do you think a service station man should

Shell Has School

DR. G. P. KOCH

It's news when business men go to school, especially a school that travels up and down to the major centers of west coast population! E. H. Merker of Santa Ana last week went to Los Angeles, where he went back to his school days in the new Shell petroleum school. It is a unique traveling laboratory, a complete course on oil production, refining and marketing, ingeniously packed in a specially built truck. Dr. G. P. Koch, instructor, carries scores of samples of petroleum products, models of gears and other mechanical devices, including 200 giant photographs and charts depicting the industry in a most complete form. With his "lab," picture curtains, and a new textbook written by himself, Dr. Koch takes his pupils on a vivid tour of oil fields and refineries and gives them an intensive course in the lubrication of industrial machinery. In subject chosen for study at this session of the school.

"The purpose of this school is to take information about all the latest developments in lubrication directly to our men in the field," says Selwyn Eddy, division manager of the company. "Shell Oil company believes that training is the foundation of success and for several years has conducted an annual educational course with sessions in Los Angeles, where the oil fields are, San Francisco, the headquarters of the company. In order to reach more men, our executives decided that the school should be put on wheels and go to the men in the field. Most men have to seek for special training which they need to equip them for higher positions, but Shell men have such training brought to them, free of charge."

Nephew of Local Man Writes About Major Bowes' Cars

James H. Randel, Orange county sealer of weights and measures, has received a letter from his nephew, Thomas Schoonmaker, who is librarian of music for Major Bowes of radio fame, in New York City. In the letter Schoonmaker brought out a few points pertaining to the major's touring equipment, which said:

On the way to work yesterday I paused to look in the automobile showroom windows of the Chrysler building, where, on a turntable, cars travel on no gallons per mile. Among the exhibits was a special job—a station wagon—for Major Bowes, one of Chrysler's hired men, and it prompted me to investigate the automotive equipment the major has got since he took his new job.

The equipment is formidable, and all made, of course, by Walter P. The major would have been a sucker to keep his old Cadillac on his new job.

The station wagon is the newest of the four Bowes cars. It has glass windows instead of singlass ones, green leather upholstery, dark and light green paint. The dark is a standard Brewster green, the light is called Major Bowes light. The present license plate would give a traffic cop the screaming meemies. It says:

MARYLAND 1937
MURRAY HILL
8-9933

... and it would probably get the pie-wagon going if it ever ventured on the street. When the car goes into service on Bowes' Ossington estate it will have a new set of Maryland plates.

The major has four cars—one of each kind manufactured by his boss. All are tricked up with Bowes light and Bowes dark green, but the major's big car is probably the specialist special to be found this side of the Nizam of Hyderabad's garage. Plenty of pert treatment of all illnesses, according to moral necessities and which in one particular case proved the principal cause for the death of a Duisburg citizen."

MANY BUICKS BOUGHT FOR CORONATION

The last Buick car "for delivery in London before the coronation" was hoisted aboard the Queen Mary in New York harbor, May 5, and was deposited in Southampton four days later, from where it was immediately delivered to Prince Ali Khan, now in the British capital to attend the coronation of his monarch, George VI, today.

And thereon hangs a tale—a story of buzzing cables, transatlantic telephone calls, imperative telegrams and "must" orders necessary to the production and shipment of cars wanted by their purchasers in London for the coronation.

Princes, potentates and statesmen throughout the world ordered Buicks for the affair. From India and Ceylon, from South America, South Africa and Australia, the special orders arrived at the factories here, relayed by the export division of General Motors, whose far-flung organization retails Buicks in the remote corners of the earth.

Prince Ali Khan's Buick was ordered in Bombay, India. It was built to his order in the factory at Flint and was delivered in London in time for the coronation. So it is with more than 50 other "Coronation Buicks."

The Maharaja of Jaipur also placed his order for a new Buick in Bombay. The car was delivered to his military secretary in London. It was shipped March 20. The Nawab of Phepal's new Buick cleared on the S. S. American Merchant March 19.

"The coronation rush has kept the factory export department extraordinarily busy during the past two months," said W. D. Gordon, manager of Reid Motor Co., distributors of Buicks for Orange county. "Exports to London normally are heavy at this time of the year. But this year the Buick factory had an unusual rush for London deliveries as a result of this all-important event."

Gordon said all of the "Coronation Buicks" were shipped completely built up and ready to drive when unloaded at their destination.

A cane and an umbrella. The glass partition behind the chauffeur—an ex-marine named Herbert Nelson—is raised and lowered electrically, which shows what an exhausting life the major must lead. The front of the rear compartment contains a bottle, glasses, a collapsible serving table faced with glass and indirectly lighted; two siphons, four decanters, a compartment for ice cubes and another compartment for food if anybody is crazy enough to want to eat.

There is a telephone from the major to Nelson. The number is not Murray Hill 8-9933. Somebody slipped there. One arm rest contains a ducky set of stationery. The other contains an electric razor, a brush and a comb. There are a couple of radios, one front, one back. Maybe Nelson would rather hear Jay C. Flippen.

I asked the major if he got all these cars free or wholesale. He said he ordered them and hasn't got a bill yet. He likes to drive himself, having driven since 1902 and having been an amateur race driver. Mr. Chrysler drives what amounts to a stock job.

Man Sues for $36,620 Lost at Playing Cards

NEW YORK (AP).—Paul K. Richter, retired Chicago business man of San Marino, Cal., has filed suit in federal court to recover $36,620 he said he lost playing cards.

The game was on a steamship bound from New York to San Francisco. Richter said he won at first, but when the ship docked he had lost. He said he gave William D. Frad, named defendant in the suit, a check for $36,620, as the winner. The check was drawn on a Chicago bank.

Richter claims gambling debts are outlawed by statute in Illinois, but that Frad gave the check to the Empire Trust Company's Fifth Avenue branch, which cashed the check.

Boulder Power Is Due June 1

WASHINGTON (AP).—Secretary Tamm notified the first purchasers of Boulder dam power today the $11,000,000 plant on the Colorado river will begin routine power production June 1.

Reclamation bureau officials said the date is two years ahead of schedule. There will be four generators, each sharing the distinction of being the world's largest in operation. Eventually 15 large generators and two smaller generators will be installed.

George Dunton today announced the appointment of Charles F. Laverly as Lincoln and Zephyr wholesaler for Orange county and retailer for Santa Ana.

Laverly has been associated in the automotive field since 1911 when he was with the late A. C. Gray, pioneer Ford dealer on the coast. Later he was in the Ford business in Hollywood and for the past five years has been Ford, Lincoln and Zephyr dealer in Oceanside.

Laverly comes to Dunton's as a well qualified man to handle this position.

Hog Raisers to Fight County Law

L. & N. Feeding company, owner of a new hog ranch near Tabor, will not only fight the order canceling its sanitary and building permit, but will fight the new county hog-ranch ordinance, it was indicated yesterday.

G. N. Lyon, president of the firm, and Hugh G. Maddox, Long Beach attorney, were here yesterday to confer with District Attorney W. F. Menton. At the conference it was to be decided whether the county or the ranch company will start a suit to determine the respective rights.

ANOTHER SMART USED CAR BUYER

"A Dodge dealer's classified ad led me to the newest looking used car I have ever seen," says Katherine H. Holbrook, stenographer. "The upholstery was almost like new and the finish was spick and span. But what interested me most was that it was a Blue Seal car. The Dodge dealer had all the facts about it on a card in plain sight and there was absolutely no chance to go wrong. After buying, I learned that I paid about $35 less than was being asked elsewhere. Anyone who is planning to buy a used car really should look for the Dodge dealer's classified ad every time. That's the best way I know of to save money and get a dependable used car."

"Flood-Light On Europe: a Guide to the To the Next War," by Felix Wittmer; (Scribner's: $3.75).

Here is a shrewd, good-humored and evenly balanced book on the situation in Europe today, as it seems likely to affect the situation tomorrow. It is by Felix Wittmer, a Swiss-born internationalist at present lecturing on European affairs at a certain American college. And it is called "Flood-light on Europe."

The book is a synthesis. It is not a windy, superficial study of political trends at all, but a study of each European country which combines (as such studies certainly should) a glance at history, at economics, at politics, and an estimate of what may be expected when another war comes along. It will come along, Mr. Wittmer thinks, although he is not sure it will arrive this year.

Realistic View
The Spanish and the German situations are, it seems to this writer, handled superbly. We have grown so used to having Hitler's Germany switched around the ankles by "exiled" writers, and to wild estimates of Germany's activities, resources, and whatnot, that a realistic view of Germany's position today is quite impossible for us.

But it is possible for Mr. Wittmer. He is not at all concerned with lashing, but only with performance. Hitler emerges from Mr. Wittmer's treatment a far more significant figure than the world has been allowed to see, so far and many of Germany's policies take on continuity and point. It would be a good thing to read Wittmer on Germany.

Readjustment
This same realistic viewpoint makes Spain and her present agony understandable, and France and Italy as well. Indeed, this readjustment is so general, and sometimes so suitable, that even general illustrations do not do it justice. Possibly it is Mr. Wittmer's Swiss birth that makes his Olympian impartiality possible; perhaps it is that, too, which enables him to hold back from prediction, and to realize that the words fascist, communist and so

INDICTMENTS

DISMISSEDOnly Few Of Douglas
Strikers Remain To Face Charges

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—On motion of the prosecution, Superior Judge William T. Bishop dismissed indictments against 262 of 288 men called to trial yesterday on charges of conspiracy to trespass in their sit-down strike at the Douglas aircraft factory last February.

The motion to dismiss by Chief Deputy District Attorney William Simpson expressed belief that the 262 were used as "tools by the real conspirators."

Judge Bishop said: "The indictment against all these defendants was returned by an agency of this court. All were charged with the crime. You make no representation—is the evidence insufficient to convict, Mr. District Attorney?"

"Yes, your honor," Simpson replied. "We consider it insufficient on which to prosecute 262 of the defendants."

"This court," Judge Bishop then observed, "doesn't want it to appear that the grand jury, an agency of the court, was used to break a strike."

"The court is not in that business. The court is not in position to review the evidence against these defendants. If the district attorney says evidence in this matter is insufficient to convict, that is enough for this court."

Board Writes
Off $1858 In Old
Hospital Bills

Supervisors yesterday afternoon wrote off the county books $1858 in uncollectable accounts at the county hospital. The action was on motion of Supervisor Harry D. Riley, who said that Dr. Harry Zaiser, county hospital superintendent, reported attempts had been made to collect the accounts.

The amount has accumulated in 1933 and later years, according to records filed with the board.

SHAW BOYCOTTS G. O. P. HAS NEW CORONATION FUNDS DRIVE

LONDON. (AP)—George Bernard Shaw boycotted the coronation today.

"Nature has made me proof against the illusions and idolatries which such ceremonies are intended to create," he said.

"As I am by profession a creator of theatrical illusions," the famed dramatist added in a statement to the Communist organ, The Daily Worker, "these amateur pageants only bore me."

Indirectly Shaw referred to the abdicated King Edward VIII as an example of the restrictions imposed on the monarch "to change his powers so they would be symbolic rather than actual."

"To me all this blocking of traffic and disfiguring of London in my neighborhood by stands and disorderly bunting of crude red, white and blue is so inconvenient that, though I do not grudge the people who like it their fun, I flee to the remotest coasts to be as far as possible out of it all."

Convicted of slaying her husband in 1928 and paroled last May, Mrs. Marshall wrote Gov. Bibb Graves from Staten Island, N. Y.:

WASHINGTON. (AP)—John Hamilton, Republican national chairman, outlined a campaign today to coordinate national and state fund raising by men not holding office.

Agreements to share the contributions have been concluded between the national committee, the congressional campaign committees and party officers in 17 states.

Expressing a hope to wipe out the deficit this year, he said $125,000 of the $950,000 owed in November had been paid off. Solicitation under the new plan has started in New York, West Virginia, Illinois and Texas.

SWIFT, PACKING
CHIEF, DIES

CHICAGO. (AP)—Louis F. Swift, 76, former president and chairman of the board of Swift & Co., packers, died in a hospital today after a several weeks' illness.

He started in the meat packing business at the age of 10 and held virtually every position in the company. Swift retired in 1933 after resigning as a director. When a school boy on Cape Cod, Swift held a lantern during

MALCOM GIVEN
SCHOOL POST

Echoes of a bitter school district battle finally were stilled at San Juan Capistrano Monday night when J. S. Malcom was elevated to the position of vice-principal of the high school.

Malcom for 14 years was principal of the school, but was relieved down to four at Monday night's meeting and decision probably will be reached tonight, Carl Hankey, president, said. Paul Richards, for the past year principal, resigned recently.

A field of 14 applicants for the principal's position was narrowed down to four at Monday night's meeting and decision probably will be reached tonight, Carl Hankey, president, said. Paul Richards, for the past year principal, resigned recently.

Oil Lease Nets
County $7200

Supervisor Harry D. Riley yesterday presented the county with a gift of $700 which he had wrung from the Hillman-Long company, lessors of oil land in the vicinity of Anaheim.

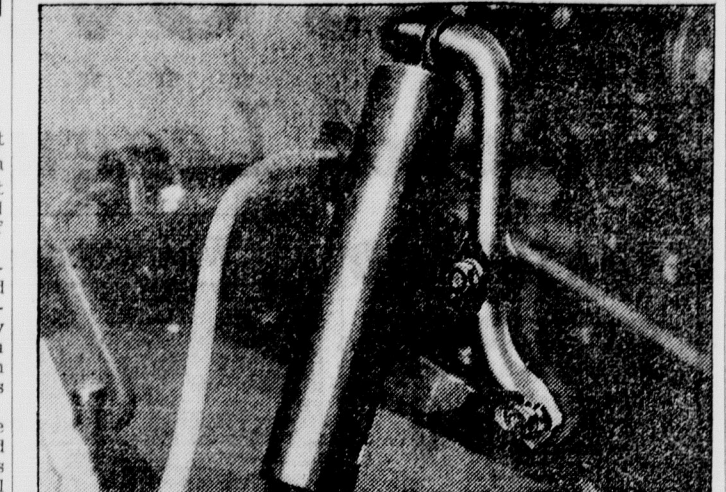

Riley, appointed by the board last week to look into the oil company's offer to lease the county flood control seeping grounds of 40 acres, west of Anaheim, yesterday brought in a lease under which the county is to be paid $5 per month per acre until drilling commences.

Previously the county had been offered $2 per acre per month. The difference, over the five-year period the lease is to run, will amount to $7200. The company is to pay the county $200 per month for the land.

Dodge Uses New Type Shock Absorbers

The straight, reciprocating, telescoping action and sturdy construction of the new Dodge airplane-type hydraulic shock absorbers are seen in this illustration of the left hand, front unit. New Light 10 Pct. Stronger
Without Using More Power

CLEVELAND. (AP)—A new electric lamp, that gives 10 per cent more light simply by taking a double twist in the filament, was announced today to the advanced lighting conference of utility engineers.

No extra current is required. The announcement was made by J. E. Kewley, vice president in charge of the General Electric incandescent lamp department here at Nela Park.

The new double twist, while apparently as simple as child's play, required years of research. The ordinary tungsten filament is coiled, like a spring. The double twist takes this same coil, and coils it again.

The result is a filament just half as long and about twice as fat. It contains no more tungsten wire.

In the short, fat shape is the secret of the 10 per cent more light. The gas in a lamp bulb, being in motion, cools the filament. Cooling cuts down light.

The short, fat coil exposes less surface to the gas, it was announced, and so stays hotter and gives more light.

The 10 per cent increase in light is in the nature of a scientific miracle. This is because production of light is, scientifically speaking, one of the most inefficient processes known.

When Edison made the first incandescent lamp its "efficiency" was around 3 per cent. This means that of the total energy used to produce the electricity, 3 per cent came out as light. The rest was heat and waste.

In the 50 years since then the "efficiency" has been increased to around 12 per cent on the average.

NUDIST SCORES
STRIP TEASE

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Elton R. Shaw, the Lansing Sunday school teacher who is president of the American Sun Bathing association, criticized the "strip-tease" fad today, and praised police officials who have closed burlesque theaters.

He said nudists generally "condemn commercialization or exploitation of nudity and sex."

Shaw disclosed that four nudist camps are operating this spring in Michigan, "somewhere near" Detroit, Flint, Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo.

He said religious services were held on Sunday in each camp, with the preachers and congregations all unclad. The vacation season, he predicted, will find 500 Michigan business and professional men and their families in nudist camps. More than half of the nudists in the state are college graduates, he said.

Because of the evening chill—and mosquitoes—nudist campers frequently don conventional clothing after dark, he said.

George Preble, 10-year veteran of the National Nightball league wars, was signed to an Anaheim contract last night, a few hours after receiving an outright release by his own request—from the Santa Ana commission.

Preble, who joins the Valentias at Westminster Friday night, will not have his job cut out for him, but it is our guess he will outshine from W. E. Feistner's "millionaire" first-string.

It probably will be Herman Korder, a better ball player than many credit him for being at second base. . . . George can play the outfield, but Anaheim already has four ace flyhaws. Even Floyd Montgomery warned the bench until the ninth inning against Orange last night.

Genial George Stewart, match-maker at the O. C. A. battle box, transferred his Friday fight to Thursday for one reason: to avoid conflict with the National Nightball league games. . . . He will continue to offer the same type of high-class shows.

Stewart has arranged a "triple main" event that should nearly pack the house tomorrow night. Everett (Cyclone) Jure, the flashy Frenchman from Redlands, squares off against Vic Covas, Los Angeles puncher, in the semi-main event. Jure is aggressive, and his leather tossing always pleases the Highway 101 customers. . . . Barney Reese, Atwood Atom, and Ray Ima, the Los Angeles Oriental, are billed for a rematch. . . . In the "triple main" event, John Hanschen, 190-pound Riverside heavyweight, battles Henry Moberly, Los Angeles negro; Jack Jones of Newport Harbor tangles with Huel James of Los Angeles; and Rico Martinez, best of the Sherman Indians in the 140-pound class, has it out with Jim Johnson of Los Angeles.

Long Beach Woodrow Wilson is capable of retaining its Southern California track-and-field title in the C. I. F. finals at Long Beach Saturday afternoon. . . . John Gartner, coach of the Bruins, believes his team can score 20 points barring major upsets.

Modern airplane power plants weigh about two pounds for each horsepower produced.

National League Spotlight on Pittsburgh

PIRATES COP SIXTH FROM BEES, 3-0

Athletics Continue Pace In American Loop By Choking Tigers, 4-1

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates moved into the Polo Grounds today boasting six victories in seven starts since they came East last Tuesday.

They chalked up their sixth yesterday behind Cy Blanton, 3-0, over the Bees.

The Philadelphia Athletics have had similarly clear sailing on their western joy-ride. Atop the American league as a result of their 4-1 trimming of the Tigers and Cleveland's fall before Boston, 11-4, Connie Mack's men moved into Cleveland today with a record of six won in seven starts.

The Yankees copied a 7-2 verdict to the White Sox, as Lou Gehrig failed to hit, his 20th straight fruitless appearance.

Jack Knott did a neat relief for the Browns to top the Senators, 7-5.

The Dodgers edged into the National league first division at the expense of the Cubs with a 5-7 defeat of the Cardinals.

Four home runs and Cloyd Castleman's four-hit hurling proved too much for the Cubs, the crippled Chicagoans bowing to the Giants, 10-1. The Reds whipped the Phillies, 12-3.

Betteridge Third In Midget Races On Atlantic Oval

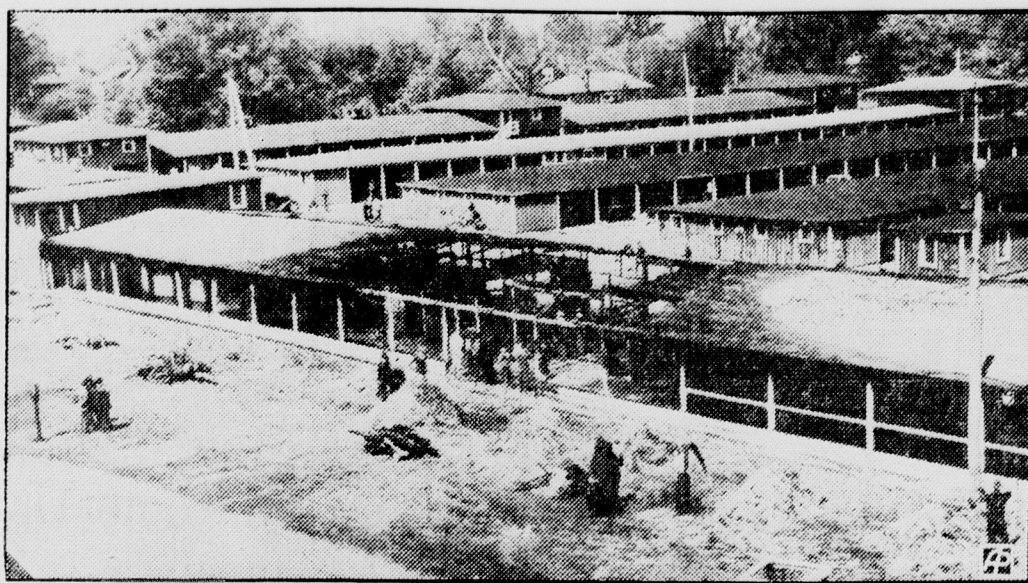

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Pat Cunningham burst into racing prominence last night by capturing the 40-lap main event of the Atlantic speedway's midget auto program, but Karl Young, 1936 champion, was right on his heels.

Cunningham's time was 11 minutes 36.58 seconds. Bill Betteridge was third and Louie Foy finished fourth.

Sam Hanks, robbed of the lead in the 40-lapper by motor trouble, won the three-lap trophy dash in 51.5 seconds, followed by Fred Friday.

Vaughn Dickerson and his sidecar partner, Speed Springer, were slightly injured when they skidded and hit a fence in a five-lap race won by Glenn Fulkerston in 1 minute 42.9 seconds.

Sixteen thoroughbreds were so badly burned or injured in a mysterious fire in a 44-stall barn at the Pimlico race track near Baltimore that they died or had to be destroyed. Many others were led to safety. This picture shows the ruins of the barn.

FRED STEELE SCORES THIRD ROUND KAYO

SEATTLE. (AP)—Coronation day found Freddie Steele of Tacoma, monarch of the middleweights, celebrating a new triumph—a three-round knockout over Frank Battaglia, the gentleman farmer-boxer from Minneapolis.

Steele blasted Battaglia out of the challenging column here last night before 8000 fans who turned out to watch a 15-round title match.

The Tacoma, Wash., fighter sent Battaglia to the canvas three times, once in each round. At the start of the third, Freddie hung a blazing left on Battaglia's jaw and he fell flat on his battered face.

Steele's first blow—a paralyzing left—toppled Frank for the count of nine in 31 seconds after the first round opened. Battaglia shocked Steele with a right on the jaw early in the second, but Steele dashed in, mopping up the floor with Frank until he flopped. The bell saved him at the three-count.

St. Mary's Gridiron Togs Were Stolen By Loyal Collegian

MORAGA. (AP)—The unusual theft of 47 football suits from St. Mary's college was largely ignored by reporters because the announcement—coming from a press agent just before a game—looked suspicious. Now college authorities have established the truth of the story and obtained a confession, the guilty youth explaining it was a prank.

Some folks, however, are crediting him with real college spirit. The flashing green jerseys with a gold harp were ordered especially for eastern contests and St. Mary's has never won a game in them. They are considered a jinx.

CELLAR REDS BOAST BEST HITTERS

By the Associated Press
The cellar-dwelling Mission Reds are still the best batsmen in the Pacific Coast baseball league today.

Blasting 26 base hits, the Reds annihilated the Portland Beavers, 21 to 0, last night. Hal Tost, making his first appearance as a starting pitcher, limited the Beavers to four hits while his teammates massacred the offerings of four Portland pitchers in the first inning to get off to an 11-run start.

The Sacramento Solons came from behind to defeat the San Diego Padres, 8 to 7, and remain in first place by a good margin. Los Angeles managed to get two homers by Rip Collins and Second Baseman Holt, to trim Seattle, 9 to 2. Ed Stutz hurled San Francisco to a 2-1 victory over Oakland.

Frank Doljack, Missions' center fielder, hit five times out of six, including a brace of homers and two doubles. Left Fielder Harry Rosenberg also hit five out of six. Gordon Slade of the Reds, who complained of a sore back before the game, managed to get two doubles in his three times at bat.

The Padres bagged three runs in the first inning, but Sacramento came back in its half of the inning to get two of the runs back with a pair of singles and a double. In the fifth inning the Solons' Art Garibaldi and Buster Adams hit home runs, and in the seventh the Sacs took an 8-to-7 lead on two doubles and a single.

Pay Thomas, one of the league's best pitchers, limited the Seattle Indians to nine scattered hits and fanned six while his teammates murdered the offerings of three Seattle hurlers.

Steinke, Szabo Rematched at Highway Club

Sandor Szabo, Hungarian Adonis, and claimant to the Pacific Coast heavyweight wrestling title, today was signed for a three-fall rematch with Hans Steinke as the feature attraction on Monday night's wrestling card at the Orange County Athletic club.

Szabo, returning here for the first time in 14 months, claiming the Pacific coast championship as the result of winning a three-month tourney held at Portland in which topnotchers from every section of the Pacific coast and northwest competed, won on a fluke from Steinke.

The Hungarian managed to crawl back into the ring before the completion of the 20-count after both principals took a spectacular fall into the ring-side.

Leo (The Lion Man) Numa, the hit of the night three weeks ago, returns to meet Pete Mehrling, former football star, in the 45-minute semi-windup, while Walter (Cyclone) Underhill of Kansas City swings back into action against Jack (Dutch) Holland. Underhill went to a draw with Mehrling Monday. The opener will feature the Mexican ace, Jose Murguia against Rudy Strongberg.

Huntington Beach's Potent Oilers will not be easily dethroned as Southern California nightball champions.

They proved this much to doubting Thomases before 1000 fans at Huntington Beach last night by blanking Westminster's Aviators, 7-0, behind the six-hit pitching of Frank (Chico) Salica.

Al Reboin, ex-Santa Ana making his debut with the Oilers as a catcher, gathered a double and two singles in a 10-hit assault by Manager Joe Rodgers' kingpins. Rodgers himself wielded a wicked bat, driving in four runs and hitting a single and double in four trips. Bill McKinley, third baseman, rapped a home run, double and single.

McKinley's home run, a long drive into right-center, scored Orv Schuchardt, who had doubled, and George Murray, who had walked, for three runs in the first off Jack Dugan, Westminster's right-hander. The Oilers picked up two more in the sixth on consecutive doubles by McKinley, Reboin and Rodgers. In the eighth, McKinley and Reboin singled. Rodgers beat out a bunt that scored McKinley from third, and Reboin scored on Jim McNabb's error at second.

Huntington Beach makes the long hop to San Bernardino tomorrow night. San Bernardino moved the game ahead to avoid conflict with a wrestling show.

SALICA WOULD BOX ESCOBAR

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Lou Salica of New York sought a crack at the bantamweight champion, Sixto Escobar, today following a hard-fought victory over heavier Pete De Grasse here last night.

Matchmaker Suey Welch of the Olympic auditorium started negotiations to bring Escobar to the coast for the New York Italian.

Salica's win over the veteran Indian was close, and many thought De Grasse should have captured the verdict. He weighed 123½, Salica 119.

Mott and Koral Shine at Plate

The Stars came out last night, in a manner befitting a dangerous title contender, fell upon two Riverside pitchers for 12 hits and a 5-to-2 victory in their National Nightball league premier at the Municipal bowl last night.

For some unknown reason—perhaps because many local fans have underestimated Manager Ray (Doc) Smith's charges—only a handful of customers were in the stands. The Stars play Orange, 4-3 conqueror of Anaheim, at Orange, Friday night, and go to Huntington Beach next Tuesday night.

ORANGE TOPS ANAHEIM

Cubs Score Winning Run In Ninth; Lyle Morse Raked for 11 Hits

Pulling the surprise upset of the first round, Orange's hustling Cubs upset Anaheim's "million dollar" outfit, 4-3, in a bitterly-fought National league nightball game at Anaheim last night.

New Manager Clair (String) McDonnell's Valentias were off to a business-like start with two runs in the first, but Orange knotted the count in the fourth, and picked up winning runs in the fifth and ninth. Both nines scored in the last inning.

Anaheim Scores Two

Terry Griffith, stirred up Anaheim's first-inning rally with a double. Leavitt Daley hit a Texas leaguer which neither Tommy Lacy or Roy Hahne could reach in left field, Griffith scoring on the play.

"Slim" Wiseman's single brought in Daley, after Mal Higgins had grounded out.

Orange got the runs back in the fourth on Irwin (Baldy) Foltz' double and singles by Nelson Struck and Lacy. Struck's blow scored Foltz. Struck and Lacy then pulled a double steal which sent Struck across the plate.

Bris Richardson, who had a field day at the plate with four hits, led off with a single for Orange in the fifth, took second on an error, third on a wild pitch, home on a passed ball.

The Cubs made it 4-2 in the first of the ninth on Richardson's opening single. Roy Hahne was safe on an error, with Richardson scoring from third on Foltz' grounder to Shortstop Griffith.

One-Run Rally

Anaheim put on a mild flurry in the last of the ninth. Catcher Stives led off with a single, but was forced at second by Floyd Montgomery, who was sent in as a pinch-hitter. Dave Webb singled, and Montgomery crossed the pan while the Cubs were playing for the second out at first base.

ANOTHER SMART USED CAR BUYER

"When my friends compliment me on the swell car I'm driving and give me credit for knowing all about automobiles," says Charles Fredericks, bus driver, "I don't hesitate to tell them that anyone can buy a used car as long as they know how to get a big bargain in a dependable used car as I did. All any used car buyer needs to do is to visit his nearest Dodge dealer. He's sure of finding just the make and model used car he wants, and at a price that's bound to save him money."

"The reason for this, as I understand, is that there is such a demand for new Dodge and Plymouth cars that Dodge dealers naturally have the pick of the trade-ins. I know the sedan I got was priced around $30 under the general prices around town for the same type car, and mine drives and looks almost like new. I'm sold on the Dodge dealer as the best place to go for a money-saving used car buy."

DON GRDMEN
READY FOR CAL-TECH

Trickery of Coach "Fox" Stanton's Caltech varsity faces the wide-open play of Coach Bill Cook's Santa Ana Jaycee eleven tomorrow night in the Municipal Bowl for the second local spring football game.

Dummy tackling and individual blocking tactics were put through a grinding workout yesterday afternoon at Poly field by the Don grid maestro. The Dons regulars were put through a series of down-field laterals. Coach Cook will probably mix up his two teams tomorrow night, using part veterans in the first lineup to give impetus to the high school newcomers.

Caltech brings the best team which has ever been represented in the Southern conference. The Engineers downed Pasadena Jaycee, 12-0, the team which whitewashed the Dons last Friday, 19-0.

FIVE SAINTS
QUALIFY

Five Santa Ana High school athletes have qualified for the Southern California prep track-and-field finals to be held in Long Beach Saturday afternoon. Coach Reece Greene of the Saints has been notified.

Their performances in divisional trials at Herbert Hoover, Glendale, last week were judged as good enough to warrant a chance in the finals. Wendell Tedrow automatically qualified when he set a new C. I. F. high-jump record of 6 ft. 1 1/2 in. in the Class B division.

Accompanying Tedrow to the Long Beach classic will be Capt. Herschel Whitney, who will run the mile; Wayne Piper and Jerome Duffy, Class B 220-yard dashmen, and Jack Clark, who ran second in the Class C 120-yard low hurdles at Glendale.

TROJAN SCRUBS WIN, 6 TO 0

Stop Varsity Elevens Cold

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The new University of Southern California football team trotted out of the tunnel in the coliseum for the windup game of spring training. The "better half" of the squad was dubbed the Trojan Reds, and the culs were the Whites.

"Great team this year," predicted No. 1. "The Reds are the varsity, I think."

The game started. "We've got an offense this year," Howard Jones says. "No. 1's voice trailed off in the roar as the varsity lost the ball on downs."

Red Passes Fail. "And a passing attack, too. Wait and see."

The ball went back to the Reds. The Whites had tried two passes against an old-fashioned Trojan line. The Reds tried three straight passes, all wild and incomplete.

The quarter ended with the ball in mid field. At least a dozen passes had been thrown. None was good. Troy's old power plays were tried, also with little success.

A second Red team took the field. "There's Ambrose Schindler, Boy."

Schindler Is Stopped. Schindler crashed into the line. One yard. Schindler crashed into the line again. One yard. He crashed into the line again. One yard. It was fourth down and a yard to go.

The gun sounded, the half ended. "Oh, well, maybe next time. Great defensive club, the Whites. Sensational lines."

His companion nodded silently. "Well, I think I'd better be going. Wonder what kind of team U. C. L. A. has this year."

Incidentally, the scrub Whites finally won the game, 6 to 0.

Lacking their customary strength on the track, the Trojans hoped to score heavily in the field where Bill Sefton and Earle Meadows, record-breaking pole vaulters, Delos Thurber and Jerry Graetz in the high jump and Don Skinner and George Boone in the broad jump are counted on as good point winners. Adrian Talley and Roy Staley in the 100-yard dash and high hurdles respectively will be favored to place close to the top in their events.

If Ross Bush, Pacific Coast conference half-mile champion, is in shape, the Trojans expect to put a strong two-mile relay team in the field with Bob Olson, Ned Jensen and Phil Roulac as Bush's running mates. The Trojan sprint team with Talley anchoring the 440-yard quartet and Clark Crane anchoring the half-mile four are rated as S. C.'s best bet for relay victories.

Southern California's entries for the West Coast relays: 440-yard relay—Boone, Jordan, Crane and Talley. 880-yard relay—Boone, LaFond, Talley and Crane. Mile relay—Jordan, Bonebrake, R. Olson and McNeerney. 2-mile relay—R. Olson, Jensen, Roulac and Bush. Distance medley—Corley, Tanner, Yates and Portanova.

Open 100-yard dash—Talley and Vickers. Open high hurdles—Staley and L. Olson.

Pole vault—Sefton, Meadows and Howe. High jump—Thurber and Gracin. Broad jump—Skinner and Boone. Shot put—Hansen, Fisher and Miller. Discus throw—Gaspar and Wrotnowski. Javelin throw—Soper, Martin and Ehren.

Hollywood

and SOUNDSBy
ROBBIN
COONSHOLLYWOOD. — Filmland's glamor mills labor in vain over many subjects, but once in a while they turn out a Gail Patrick.

Hollywood, and Margaret Fitzpatrick's intelligence, can take a bow for Gail Patrick. The difference between Margaret Fitzpatrick and Gail Patrick is the difference between just any pretty girl and a movie actress.

In 1932 Margaret Fitzpatrick arrived, a regional contest winner who had no hope of being chosen as the "panther woman." She was a nice, pretty young woman from Birmingham, Ala., a college graduate and a law student. She had good family background, a good head, some natural beauty, an open friendly manner.

Self-Conscious About Height
By Hollywood's standards she knew little about wearing clothes. You wouldn't have picked her out of a crowd for "smartness." She was tall—5 feet 7—and self-conscious about her height. She wore low-heeled shoes.

At first she took her Hollywood visit as a vacation. So did the studio. But Marion Gering directed a test anyway. Executives didn't look at it until they heard another studio was interested. Then they looked and signed her—at $50 a week. I believe it was on an "Oh-we-might-as-well" basis.

She did bits, and pretty soon the glamour mill started in. She wore her hair long, a knot at the neck. Lenore Sabin, the hairdresser, began experimenting. She tried one coiffure and another. When Gail was cast in "Death Takes A Holiday" and the studio wanted her blonde she refused to bleach. She compromised on a blonde wig—over a bob. Dot Ponde, who does Dietrich's make-up, did things to Gail's. Studio designers took her in hand, showed her how to "wear" clothes, made gowns especially for her. They put her in high heels and she learned how to look stately instead of "too tall." She took diction lessons and minimized her southern accent. She studied acting.

Publicity Helped
The publicity machine went to work, too. Gail had a good "angle": pretty law student's ambition to be Alabama's governor. When she told about it, you believed her. If you didn't, it still made a good yarn. It got printed. So did photographs: Paramount starlet greets women's convention; meets train, plane, boat; bakes a cake; plants a tree.

She spent an average of three hours, three days a week doing publicity pictures. That's how young "unknowns" earn their money when not on a picture. And that's how "unknowns" get known. It does no good unless the girl has something new to offer. Gail had—and she doesn't run around meeting trains, planes and boats nowadays.

Recently she signed a new contract, netting well over $1000 a week. She negotiated the details personally.

I think now she'll never be governor of Alabama.

George O'Brien is to star in "Hollywood Cowboy"—but he's the only native Californian among the shoot-and-ride heroes.

James Hogan, the big directing toughie, cries real tears when he gets into a sentimental scene. . . . Katherine Hepburn cares more for comfort and less for her costumed finery than any star hereabouts. If she feels like lying on the grass, on location, she lies. . . .

NEW SHOW AT BROADWAY

The program changes at the Broadway theater tonight, with a new double feature program presenting "Melody For Two" and "Mountain Justice."

"Melody For Two" is a musical drama starring the golden-voiced idol of the airwaves, James Melton, and Patricia Ellis. "Tin Pan Alley, night clubs and radio stations figure prominently in the settings. Filled with new hit tunes, the film is a hilarious one, the theme of which is a musical feud between Miss Ellis and Melton, who direct rival dance bands. "Mountain Justice" is a study of love and life, battling against ignorance, fanaticism and backwardness in a hill-country community. It co-stars Josephine Hutchinson and George Brent. The dramatic story concerns the efforts of a girl to bring enlightenment to the community. Her father, who viciously opposes her efforts, is murdered, and a court trial climaxes the drama.

A special short subject on the program is "Hollywood Party," a musical in Technicolor and featuring many stars of the screen.

Shortly after Netherland India placed restrictions on the growing of rubber this year heavy rains stopped production and a shortage followed.

BRITISH CROWN GEORGE AND ELIZABETH AS MONARCHS

rily threatening a drizzle, darkened the glitter of jewels and the gleam of bright-hued uniforms in the coronation procession. A heavy fog which shrouded the city throughout the night lifted, however, at daybreak.

At the climactic moment of the crowning, a fanfare of trumpets, a sudden-bursting tumult of applause and the swelling cry of "God save the King!" signalled the event to dense-packed hundreds of thousands outside.

The cry was caught and echoed over the empire's capital, while radio, wireless and transatlantic cables and telephones swept the tidings to millions scattered over the face of the earth.

A salute of 62 guns at the Tower of London and 42 guns in St. James' Park boomed forth, and in the crowds stood in silence, with heads bared.

Back To Palace
At the conclusion of the coronation service, the king and queen remained in the abbey for lunch, before leaving at 2:15 p. m.

At 10:30 a. m. the king and queen stood in procession to Buckingham Palace to receive the acclaim of millions.

Though slightly smaller than anticipated, the crowd was nevertheless the greatest known to London. It poured into the coronation route in a noisy, singing, dancing, shouting cavalcade, engulfing all transportation facilities and turning the streets into seething ribbons of humanity.

Crowd Is Joyous
The great bulk of the crowd, however, massed along the four-mile return procession route to see a 40-minute parade of empire.

It was a joyous, rollicking crowd, imbued with a carnival spirit which the leaden skies could not dampen.

By all odds, it was the greatest show on earth.

At 6 a. m., London time, nobility in velvet and ermine robes and carrying coronets, began arriving at Westminster Abbey. Some came by boat on the Thames, landing at Westminster pier.

King Handed Clothes
In obedience to custom, the lord great Chamberlain, the Earl of Lancaster, handed the king his undergarments and clothes.

Before daybreak, the procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey began to form. There may have been a million people packed along the procession's path. There may have been two million.

Scattered among them were British subjects from the empire lands of 13,000,000 square miles which stretch around the globe.

Punctually at 8:40 a. m., the great gilded gates of Buckingham Palace swung open and the first of the day's processions moved toward Westminster Abbey.

Preceded by motorcycle police, a chain of royal limousines rolled slowly along the sanded roadway. In the cars were the less important members of the royal family, the crown princes, representatives of the empires of the world.

Prince and Princess Chichibu of Japan were spotted easily, as was the 16-year-old Crown Prince Mihai of Rumania.

Miniature stars and stripes flew from the cars carrying American Ambassador Robert W. Bingham and Special Envoys James W. Gerard, General John J. Pershing and Admiral Hugh Rodman.

The first of the mounted cavalcade followed.

Then Comes Baldwin
Riding in an open state cage came Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, wearing the blue and gold court dress of a privy chancellor. The premier bowed repeatedly, as the crowd shouted "Good Old Baldy."

Ten more carriages followed with the dominions' prime ministers and Indian empire representatives, each escorted by colorfully garbed police or cavalry from his respective country.

Cheers swelled from the crowd as the first carriage procession of members of the royal family headed for the abbey.

The Life Guard escort, on black chargers, made a brave show in their crimson tunics, white buckskin breeches, and black topboots, with white plumes dancing from their silver helmets.

Then The Princesses
The first glass coach, surmounted with a golden crown, carried the smiling, heir presumptive to the throne, 11-year-old Princess Elizabeth, and her younger sister, Princess Margaret. With them rode their aunt, the Princess Royal, and her elder son, the 14-year-old Viscount Lascelles.

In the second glass coach were the slight and smiling Duchess of Gloucester, the stately Duchess of Kent, and the Princess Royal's younger son, the Honorable Gerald Lascelles.

A state landau carried Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught and Princess Alice (Countess of Athlone).

A roar of cheering down the Mall signalled the departure of Queen Mary from Marlborough House.

Queens Ride Together
Her glass coach, in which she rode with her sister-in-law, Queen Maud of Norway, was followed by a single landau carrying her mistress of the robes and other members of her suite.

The ancient towers of historic Westminster were shrouded in mist and its grey bulk loomed sharply against the gloom of the overcast sky.

Within wax candles lit the glamorous scene. Golden spotlights were fixed on the coronation theater with its throne chairs. Even the great personages were prevented from approaching the coronation chair as they arrived by temporary railings across the abbey.

Nearly 8000 blue and gold seats rising tier on tier to the highest arches of the abbey flashed their rainbow colors on the uniforms and gowns of peers and peeresses.

U. S. Envoys on Hand
The first Americans to arrive were those of the United States embassy party. Somewhat later came the higher dignitaries of the American delegation.

Ambassador Bingham, and Special Envoys Gerard, General Pershing and Admiral Rodman, with their aides, were required to be in their places by 8:30 a. m.

The same time limit was set for the arrival of J. P. Morgan, the New York financier, and Edward Harbeson, the American philanthropist, both personal guests of the king.

They had seats in one of the choicest boxes in a section just in front and to the left of the coronation chair.

The Americans entered the abbey by the great west door and were escorted to their seats in the nave over a great piece of blue carpet.

Rulers Leave at 10:30
The king, and the queen, in their own procession, moved from the palace at 10:30 a. m., amid the crowds' greatest cheer.

As the glittering cavalcade clattered past, thousands of handkerchiefs fluttered from the banked-up stands. Colors dipped in the road. Massed hands blared forth the national anthem.

Along the great triumphal mile of the Mall, where the rows of seats ran continuously along both sides of the spacious roadway, King George and Queen Elizabeth rode, smiling and bowing, in the gilded state coach first used by Queen Anne more than 200 years ago.

Eight horses—the famed Windsor grays—drew them on their way. Bearded yeomen of the guard, in crimson, gold and purple Tudor dress, trudged, with pikes on their shoulders, beside the great wheels of the coach. An officer bearing the royal standard rode behind, astride his high-stepping horse.

Brothers Follow
Among the king's aides-de-camp, a brilliant group in multi-colored uniforms behind the coach, rode his younger brothers, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent, with the Earls of Harewood and Athlone and Lord Louis Mountbatten.

The abbey bells pealed above the cheers as the cavalcade passed under Admiralty Arch and turned right from Trafalgar Square down the easy slope of Whitehall.

Spectators packed the narrow gulf of Downing street almost to the door of Number 10.

The procession entered Parliament Square under a triumphal arch of banners.

Canopied stands of red and gray completely enclosed the center of the square. Others rose in tiered banks around its outer edges.

Parliament on Hand
Parliament members formed a somber, dark-clothed group in stands beneath the walls of parliament.

The procession swung to the right again to pass along the north wall of the ancient abbey and the cheering swept along in waves to the abbey doors and reached the brilliant assembly inside.

From rooftops near the abbey door, watchers saw the gold coach, built when America was a colony, come into view.

Admirals riding horseback in full dress; sea-going uniforms, and marshals of the air, deserting their planes for horses, paraded alongside brilliantly caparisoned cavalry units.

The yeomen of the guard, Indian lancers, hussars in blue and gold, dragons in scarlet, maharajas in turbaned oriental splendor exhibited the grandeur of empire.

Gerard and Litvinoff
Within the abbey, American Envoy Gerard sat in the last of a long row of choir stalls. By leaning far forward, he could see the whole coronation ceremonial.

Next to him sat Maximilian Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs and Russian representative for the event. Litvinoff, a former London tailor's helper, and Gerard were exactly the same kind of court dress except that the American made a braver show with a broad band of crimson ribbon, four inches wide, stretched across his chest. It was Gerard's British decoration.

The two, in black and white evening clothes with knee breeches, talked frequently, but Litvinoff turned his attention more repeatedly to Count Dino Grandi, the Italian envoy, who sat on his other side. Grandi was a gorgeous figure in white stockings and white satin breeches, topped by a uniform coat of gold and crimson.

Selassie Represented
Ten seats away from Grandi sat Atoephrem Medhen, "representing his majesty, Emperor Selassie," whose invitation sorely irritated Italian Premier Mussolini.

As the king's coach drew up to the door of the abbey annex, footmen lowered the steps, and the youthful Duke of Norfolk, as earl marshal of England, stepped out to receive their majesties.

The little princesses drew every eye as they entered the abbey and walked gracefully to their miniature chairs on either side of their aunt, the Princess Royal.

Elizabeth was grave and dignified but Margaret dangled her feet, completely at ease. Unconcerned with the great event, she stuck up her forefinger and smiled impishly when she saw someone she knew.

Princesses Greet Mary
As their grandmother, Queen Mary, entered, her regal figure blazied with diamonds, the little princesses stood erect beside their chairs and then, at a nod from the Princess Royal, flipped their little trains over their arms and scooted up the steps to the box where the queen mother took her seat.

The venerable Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Reverend Cosmo Gordon Lang, advanced slowly, met the king and queen beneath the arch of the huge west door.

First came the recognition: Now, the Ceremony.

"Sirs, I here present unto you King George, your undoubted king." The archbishop spoke loudly. "Wherefore all you who are come this day to do your homage and service, are you willing to do the same?"

Tumult broke. Every British throat in the abbey swelled the cry, "God Save King George!" Only a thousand could see all the ceremony, but all could join the shout.

Trumpets sounded. Facing east, then south, west, north, the king turned to "show himself unto the people."

Four times the archbishop challenged. Each section of the abbey throng raised the cry, "God save King George!"

A fanfare of echoing trumpets, softened and died away. Thus the king was recognized, accepted sovereign of the British people and ready for his coronation oath.

King Takes Oath
The archbishop stood before the king. "I am willing."

A Bible rested in his hand. The archbishop: "Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the peoples of Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa, of your possessions and the other territories to any of them belonging or pertaining, and of your empire of India, according to their respective laws and customs?"

The king: "I solemnly promise so to do."

Two similar questions answered, the king pledged: "The things which I have heretofore promised, I will perform and keep. So help me God!"

Then the Anointing
He kissed the book, signed the oath, fulfilling ancient custom, to reign wisely and justly.

The great organ swelled. An age-old hymn swelled through the abbey.

The anointing! Sacred in its significance. Disrobed of his crimson mantle, the king was seated in the ancient King Edward's chair, the coronation throne, placed near the altar.

The archbishop poured olive oil, which had been blessed, from the ampulla, or golden eagle, one of the oldest pieces of the regalia.

On his head, breast, and palms of both hands, the king was anointed in the form of a cross and then, kneeling, blessed:

"Be thy hands anointed with holy oil."

"Be thy breast anointed with holy oil."

"Be thy head anointed with holy oil, as kings, priests, and prophets were anointed."

Four Knights of the Garter held over the monarch a rich pall or cloth of gold.

Thus the king was hallowed, becoming half layman, half priest, his life dedicated to unique related services of the church and state.

The Lord Great Chamberlain, dean of Westminster, other dignitaries moved forward for the investiture. The golden super-tunica, or pall of cloth of gold, was placed upon the king.

The Lord Great Chamberlain, kneeling, touched the monarch's heels with golden spurs, emblems of chivalry. Other pieces of regalia were presented to him. A beautiful sword in a scabbard was given into the king's hands by the archbishop.

"Receive this kingly sword, brought now from the altar of God," the primate intoned.

Girded With Sword
The Lord Great Chamberlain girded the sword about the king. Then the king was invested in imperial mantle and stole. The golden orb, surmounted by a cross, was placed in his right hand.

A ring was placed upon the fourth finger of the king's right hand, "the ensign of kingly dignity," called the "wedding ring of England," the ring symbolized the covenant "betwixt sovereign people."

Sceptres from the altar were placed in the king's left hand. A procession of the churchmen, dean of Westminster carrying the crown, moved toward King George.

Crowned at 12:30
The archbishop took the crown from the dean of Westminster.

Solemnly and reverently he placed it on the monarch's head. A signal raced around the world. It was just 12:30.

Canon at the Tower of London boomed.

A tumultuous demonstration began in the abbey. Shouts of acclamation, "God Save the King!" rang and echoed.

The primate of all England took the crown into his hands and placing it upon the altar, prayed: "As thou doest this day set a crown of pure gold upon his head, thou will enrich his royal heart with abundant grace and crown him with all princely virtues . . ."

So came the great moment. Archbishop Prayers.

As the outburst subsided after the placing of the crown, the voice of the archbishop rose in prayer: "God crown you with a crown of glory and righteousness."

Again the organ thundered with an anthem and the choir sang: "Be strong and play the man; keep the commandments of the Lord thy God and walk in His way."

"Our gracious king, we present you with this book, the most valuable thing this world affords," spoke the archbishop as he again presented the Bible.

King George left the coronation chair and was "lifted up" into his throne of state by archbishop, bishops and ranking peers.

All Pay Homage
The Duke of Gloucester, for the prince, the spiritual and temporal lords, solemnly paid homage to their sovereign. Kneeling, they voiced the oath, touched his crown, kissed his cheek.

Drums rolled, trumpets blared and again the people acclaimed the king.

Queen Elizabeth then was anointed and crowned, invested with the ring, sceptre and ivory chair. Her crowning by the archbishop gave the signal for peeresses to don their coronets as peers had donned theirs.

Princess Elizabeth, lifted her tiny silvery coronet to her golden head. Her sister, Princess Margaret, followed suit.

Resuming the religious service of communion, king and queen walked to the altar, removed their crowns, knelt and received the sacrament.

The great procession of state and church re-formed as they returned to their thrones and donned their crowns.

And Back To Palace
The king now was divested of the royal robe of state and invested with a robe of purple velvet. His coronation crown was changed for the imperial state crown. In his right hand he carried the royal sceptre, in his left the orb.

Queen Elizabeth, moved by his side. They formed the glittering center of the pageant moving back toward the west door of the abbey.

In all their magnificence, their majesties—now outside—took their places in their state coach and around them formed the greatest empire cavalcade London had ever seen, back to Buckingham palace.

Polio Nurses Upheld in Battle With County

EXPERTS FILE REPORTS ON TWO CASES

Supervisors Are Told
Economy Plan Might Be Disastrous

Orange county's "economy plan" to move back to the county hospital two nurses afflicted with polio had received a bad setback today.

In the case of one of the nurses an expert who investigated her case and the hospital said the plan "might even prove disastrous."

In regard to the other nurse the experts' report said she is securing adequate treatment where she is but that she probably would "do well" in any institution in which she might be placed.

Both the nurses contracted polio during the 1934 epidemic while they were on duty at the county hospital. The county has financial responsibility for their cases.

Report Filed
Two physicians were named to investigate the cases and the hospital and report to the Industrial Accident commission, under which their compensation is handled. Their report set forth the inadvisability of returning to the hospital one of the nurses, Florence Bocher.

The two physicians, named by Commissioner Charles Son of Los Angeles were Dr. Harlan Shoemaker and Dr. Leo J. Adelstein of Los Angeles.

In regard to moving Miss Bocher back to the county hospital here, which the supervisors want to do as an economy move, Dr. Adelstein said it would be bad both from an organic as well as a psychological standpoint.

"It might even prove disastrous and I would hesitate to change her treatment in any way whatsoever at this date," he said.

Second Case
The supervisors also want to move Mrs. Grace Griggs, now being treated by Dr. C. E. Stein in the Fullerton Cottage hospital, back to the county hospital.

The reports from the two physicians who investigated the cases said that Mrs. Griggs is securing very adequate treatment where she is, but that she probably will "do well" in any institution in which she might be placed.

Reports from both the physicians stressed the inadequate facilities of the Orange county hospital for the treatment of polio. The reports said the pool at the hospital could be used for very early cases of poliomyelitis for a very short period of time, but that the pool is entirely inadequate for cases requiring extensive or graduated exercise.

Dr. Adelstein's report said: "The physiotherapy department in the hospital is a small room with two examination tables, a diathermy machine and an ultra violet lamp. This is indeed a most limited amount of equipment for any physiotherapy department, particularly for the training and education of severely crippled patients."

The choral group offered numbers by Bach, Deems Taylor, and Clockey. Incidental solos were sung by Elizabeth Morgan and Laura Joiner.

Dunning included "Roadways" by Denmore and "Old Man River" by Kern in his recital.

Three prisoners were booked on drunk driving charges at the county jail Monday night by Anaheim police.

Frank Lucero, 37, Anaheim laborer, will serve 50 days, and Meredith Watt, 28, Los Angeles millworker, will serve a 75-day term.

A 17-year-old Anaheim Mexican boy, whose name is being withheld by The Journal because of his youth, was booked Monday night to await trial.

ATTORNEY FOR PURCHASING TEST HIRED

McKinney Appointed To Represent Fenelon
In Court Friday

Supervisors yesterday took the official action at which they hired B. Z. McKinney, prominent local attorney and chairman of the county Democratic central committee, to represent Eugene Fenelon, purchasing agent, at a court battle Friday on the county's purchasing policy.

Fenelon must appear before Superior Judge James L. Allen Friday to explain why he has not delivered an L. C. Smith typewriter to County Auditor W. T. Lambert.

Mandamus Action
Lambert has brought a mandamus action in order to test the policy set by the board requiring typewriter purchases to be rotated among dealers of the county regardless of the make specified by county officers.

Chairman Willard Smith, who voted against the board's resolution of policy, voted yesterday against hiring McKinney. The action was on motion of Supervisor John Mitchell.

Lambert has retained Lew W. Budget, Santa Ana city attorney, to represent him in the fight.

West Leads Battle
The board's policy was adopted at the suggestion of Supervisor N. E. West, who has expressed his opposition to the R. A. Tiernan company, exclusive agents in Orange county for the typewriter.

The case will be the first in the state to determine whether the elected county officers or the purchasing agent and the board of supervisors are to choose what supplies are to be used in county offices.

Rotary Hears Of Polish Gratitude For U. S. Help

Poland is deeply grateful to the United States for the part this nation played in securing the independence of the central European republic at the end of the world war, Harold J. Rounds, Y. M. C. A. executive from San Francisco, told local Rotarians at noon today.

Having spent nine years organizing the Polish Y. M. C. A., Rounds described some of the military, educational and political problems which confront the newly reborn nation.

The speaker was introduced by Secretary Ralph Smedley of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A.

Glenn L. Martin, former Santa Ana who now ranks as the world's No. 1 airplane builder, attended the gathering as the guest of County Treasurer T. E. Stephenson.

Budget Balancing Worries Glenn Martin, Too

Glenn Martin found it harder to balance his budget in 1937 than he did to balance his first Martin bird. And the same thing holds true today, when he is building clipper ships and giant bombers.

"The most difficult part of my job as an aviation enthusiast," Martin told The Journal, "has been to correlate expenditures with income."

"We had a hard time getting started in 1931 because there just wasn't enough money to go around. That is why we had to build all our planes by hand. Our labor was cheaper than the cost of the articles we could buy in those days."

Today we can still map out an extensive program of research, but we have to watch the dollar marks roll by. The thing that I am happy about now is that our volume of business is large enough to support the development we are making."

Martin feels that nothing can stop the development of still larger flying boats.

"At our Baltimore plant," he pointed out, "we are making three 40-passenger ships that will go into the regular trans-Atlantic schedules to be started in two years. They will carry 2200 pounds of baggage, 6500 pounds of mail, and can travel 5000 miles at a cruising speed of 175 miles per hour. They have a top speed of 240 miles per hour."

Martin pointed to an addition to his Baltimore factory as indicative of the present trend toward larger flying ships.

"We are making an addition of 255,000 square feet of floor space there," Martin explained. "We are constructing now the largest assembly hall in the world. It will be 300 feet by 450 feet with a ceiling of 43 feet. It is without a column from floor to ceiling. The roof and giant cranes are supported by huge girders which weigh 138 tons apiece."

"Now that we are able to determine weather by radio," Martin said, "we can go forward rapidly with trans-Atlantic flight plans. On the day scheduled for a trip all that has to be done is to pick the best route and fly it."

"Accidents are unfortunate as far as patronage is concerned, but they do not hold back research programs. Rather they spur aeronautical experts to perfect equipment and methods of operation."

Their own wedding anniversary and the approaching nuptials of Miss Nan Mead and Frank Curran, Jr., former of the latter's last night for the dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. U. J. Engelmann entertained in their home at 2459 Heliotrope drive.

Bruning, Dr. and Mrs. V. C. Croal, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mead, Jr., Miss Lolita Mead, and the host and hostess.

New Machine Helps Blood Flow

By CLAUD CHRISMAN, M.D.

Many persons, particularly those past middle life suffer from pain when standing in one position or when sitting down. In most cases, sitting down and resting for a few minutes will relieve the pain but it soon comes back again.

The condition has many causes, but the most frequent one is the paired arterial circulation in the limbs.

Many things can occur to prevent the blood flowing freely through the vessels. Wounds, burns, frost bites, hardening of the arteries will do it. Inflammation of the inner lining of the vessel, obstruction due to blood clots, pressure from constricting bands.

Any sudden obstruction of a large artery, such as a blood clot lodging in it, causes sudden lacerating pain followed by swelling and redness of the limb below the obstruction. Or it leaves it white, cold and numb, and gangrene may follow.

I especially want to speak about the condition when the normal blood flow is retarded. There may be no discomfort when the patient is quiet, but when he walks or stands, his limbs will begin to ache and cramp and he must stop and rest. On inspection, the limb may be more or less blue or pale and cold to the touch.

Massage, application of heat and cold and many drugs have been used to dilate the vessels and encourage the flow of blood. Patients suffering from this type of trouble who lived in mountainous regions or who visited them, found that when they reached a high altitude their trouble disappeared.

Efforts were made to duplicate this condition by the use of suction apparatus to decrease the air pressure. It was not until 1932 that Dr. Louis C. Harriman and his associates of the Cincinnati General hospital took up the subject and worked at it until they had perfected a machine in which a limb could be placed and suction applied. This recreated the air pressure and allowed the blood to flow in. Then by causing the air to flow in and reversing the procedure, suction and pressure were reduced. This brought about a free flow of blood through the limb, relieving the pain and overcoming the stagnation.

By much experimentation, they reached definite conclusions on how much expansion and contraction was needed. In this way they have restored many semi-invalids to active work and saved countless toes and limbs from amputation because of gangrene and ulcers.

Other members present were Mrs. William Stark, Mrs. Charles Siegel, and the Misses Louise Pea, Estelle Schlesinger, Jean Gaspar, Vivian Van Norman and Marcene Cook.

Tasty Breads From Sour Cream

By JUDITH WILSON

Don't be sorry if it's sour—that half-pint of cream that you expect to whip for tonight's pudding or the bottle of milk you expect to use for a custard pie. Sweet and delectable, smooth and subtle are the things you can make from the milk or cream that has "soured on the world."

You should count it as a stroke of luck. Just ask the farm wife who makes sour milk cakes, hot biscuits, muffins and cookies or who is so tender, light and delicately flavored. And ask your family what they think when you make from the following recipes.

Sour Cream Gingerbread
Mix together 1 cup sour cream, 1 cup baking molasses and 1 egg thoroughly. Add to the dry ingredients mixed and sifted together twice. For the latter you need 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup flour. Beat until thoroughly smooth and bake for 1 hour in a moderate oven.

For an unusual upside-down cake, butter the sides of a deep cake pan and in it melt 2 tablespoons of butter. Sprinkle the bottom of the pan thickly with light brown sugar and arrange sliced bananas in overlapping circles around the bottom of the pan. Turn in the batter and bake as directed.

To remove from the pan, place a cake plate over the pan, then invert carefully. Lay a cloth wrung out of hot water over the bottom of the pan and let stand about 10 minutes. Remove the pan. If any of the fruit adheres to the bottom, remove carefully with a spatula and lay in place on the upside-down cake. Serve at the table and pass unsweetened whipped cream.

Mary Stoddard Flip of a Coin for Choice of Bride Greatly Deplored by Mother in Letter Today

By MARY STODDARD

Up in Butte, Mont., recently a young man with a blonde on one arm and a brunette on the other walked into the marriage license bureau!

When the clerk started the legal procedure, the young man didn't know which girl he wished to marry. So the girls flipped a coin and the blonde won. Be he romanticist or realist, anybody knows that a marriage based upon such shifting affections starts with a handicap.

Singleness of heart is necessary for emotional peace and poise. Couple with it there must be a dignified acceptance of the importance of the new relationship.

The reader who sent the clipping announcing this strange triangle comments on it as follows: "Dear Miss Stoddard: I'm enclosing the clipping in the hope that you will use it in some way in your valuable column."

Don't you think this triangle unconsciously presented to the public is evidence as to why the American divorce rate is so enormous? This boy and girl are out with it their levity and establish a successful marriage. However, the general theme of light-mindedness that accompanies so many license applications has stamped the whole marital relationship with a sense of futility, instability, and impermanence.

The two-minute marriages of today, in which a bride and bridegroom save themselves a great deal of time and money by making a brief pilgrimage to a minister's study or a city hall magistrate, are an economic convenience.

Certainly many people who are married in two minutes before a magistrate have the same sense of responsibility as more solemnly united couples used to have. It is not for them that old-fashioned ceremonies are needed. It is for the light-hearted and light-minded—the coin-tossers like the newspaper clipping tells of.

Had the two girls backgrounded their romance with the adornments of a wedding the travesty at the courthouse never could have taken place. We never know for that who is a sister of Mrs. Shoemaker and an aunt of Mrs. Lytle. The latter's husband also enjoyed an interesting visit with three old friends with whom he had gone to school in Gridley, Kansas, at the Bangor school, which many are familiar with because of its historically significant site on the old Santa Fe Trail.

They had a very pleasant visit in Modesto with Mrs. Rose Mary. A highlight of their journey was crossing and inspecting the Oakland-San Francisco bridge. They drove over to Monterey and Santa Cruz, took in the famous 17-mile drive, but had to return via the inland route because of numerous landslides along the Roosevelt highway.

GAINES

Strange things happen at business like the huge Glenn Martin dinner in the yacht club at Newport the other night.

Take the case, for instance, of the nice old couple who missed their car back to Long Beach. They were attending as guests of Martin, but discovered the meeting had lasted so long they had no way of getting home.

People were just sort of standing around, wringing their hands when Supervisor Harry D. Riley happened by. He asked the trouble.

Immediately he boomed out, "Why, I'll take 'em home. It isn't much out of my way."

Which seems strange, as he lives in Anaheim!

I'm filing Supervisor Riley in my Orchard Department.

Then there was Old Cap Ricker. His real name is J. A. Ricker, although not many people in Balboa know that.

Cap is reputed to be the first man to bring a small power boat into Newport Bay. He's been around for years and years, and everyone likes him.

He'd known Martin in the early days. He wanted to see the famous man, but couldn't sit through a long dinner, so a private interview was arranged.

Harbormaster Tommy Bouchee, knowing of Cap's bad leg, which made walking pretty tough, went after the well known beach character in his speedboat, delivering him almost inside the yacht club so he could have a talk with the clipper builder.

Cap was all dressed up in his Sunday best and got a huge kick out of being in the club again. He was the first club secretary!

In addition, he was pretty well known himself at one time. He was the founder and publisher of "Outdoor Life," very popular sportsman's magazine.

Incidentally, the harbormaster got himself in the doghouse with a certain group during the celebration.

In preparation for the banquet, he called Gordon (Soup) Findlay, Bill Wilgus and Ralph Maskey on the phone. Told 'em they should wear soup and fish because it was to be quite an affair and everyone'd be all dressed up.

So they struggled into their straitjackets and perspiring appeared, only to discover that Tommy had crossed 'em up, and was wearing a business suit, himself. As was most everyone else.

I'll not repeat their remarks, but the gist of 'em was that the harbormaster could go to a very warm place, far from the city of Heaven, and remain there from now on!

Paul Palmer, Czar of Lido Isle, was sort of looking for this department with blood in his eye, too, because I'd put pieces in the paper concerning the excellent croaker fishing on Lido Isle.

It seems that anglers park all about and strew paper and half-eaten sandwiches and bait on the beach, which makes an unlovely atmosphere.

So, after this, fishing is officially punk on the island!

Capt. Bill Brown was an also there, and for once he wasn't talking about yachting!

I couldn't hear what he was saying, but it couldn't have been about boats, because he wasn't exhibiting his usual good-natured grin!

And now, down the coast at San Juan Capistrano, my friend, John Malcom is due for a few flowers.

John was just elected vice-principal of the high school there.

Ordinarily, one wouldn't feel like congratulating anyone named a vice-principal, but John's accustomed to handling such jobs, so he'll probably survive.

For 14 years he was principal of the school. Then came the big fight, and he was reduced to a plain teacher. Now he's on the road back up. Whoops for him!

Hobby-horses hobbiests are going to have a grand time at Fullerton tomorrow as part of the Golden Jubilee celebration.

All school kids have been invited to come to the party dressed as horses, giraffes, mules, elephants and even calliope!

They're going to get prizes 'n everything, so if you feel young and foolish, come along. I'll be there!

COUNTY'S FISH SANCTUARY BILL RECEIVES DEATH BLOW

ACTION FROM COMMITTEE REFUSED

Watson's Desperate Try For Approval Fails In Assembly

Orange county's proposed fishing preserve bill, which would have created a sanctuary for sport fish off the county coastline, received what was believed to be its death blow in Sacramento last night.

For the second time in two weeks, members of the fish and game committee of the state assembly refused a favorable vote on the preserve bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Clyde Watson, Orange.

Wire reports from Sacramento indicate that Watson probably reduced the preserve limit from two miles to one mile in a last effort to gain the committee's approval of his law, as last night's vote was reported on a one-mile basis. Previously, opponents of the measure had indicated they would support the latter.

Watson's only hope now lies in taking the measure to the floor of the assembly, which would require 41 votes. Observers claim he will not be able to muster that much strength in time to gain approval for his measure.

Members of the Orange County Coast association, said today they had given up hope for any legislation this year. Plans will be started immediately for presentation of another bill two years hence, it was reported.

The fishing preserve was rushed through the legislature two years ago by Assemblyman Ted Craig and James B. Utt and was in effect for a short time before it was found unconstitutional on a technicality by the fourth district court of appeals.

START WORK ON NEW TRUCK ROUTE THROUGH ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM.—First steps in a program to re-route truck traffic from Anaheim's main street on the east-west route were taken by the city council last night with award of a paving contract for Santa Ana avenue to Manchester highway.

C. O. Sparks received the contract with his bid of $3.35 per ton for asphalt-concrete work from Citron avenue to Manchester, approximately one-quarter mile. Estimated cost of the project is $3600. A portion of the expense will be borne by PWA.

Trucks traveling on the Olive road to Manchester will be rerouted on the new road, cutting down considerable traffic through Anaheim's business center.

Sparks also received another contract, for re-paving and grading Citron avenue from Cypress to Sycamore streets.

Re-employment of five members of the city park crew for the summer, at a raise in wages, was another action of the council, as was establishment of a new position, that of office engineer in the headquarters of E. P. Haggood, city engineer.

Trustees of the school are Vernon Heil, C. E. Worthy and P. W. Elliott.

PART OF FUNDS DENIED NURSE

It cost Marva Best, one of the Orange county hospital nurses who contracted infantile paralysis in 1933, exactly $51.65 to have approximately $500 advanced to her indemnity in order to attend university classes this summer, it developed at the meeting yesterday afternoon of the board of supervisors.

The sum was set by the state industrial accident commission in authorizing the advance. The commission figured 6 per cent interest on the money from the time it is advanced until the end of the 240 weeks Miss Best was to have received weekly payments of $15.53.

Technically, the commission allowed Miss Best to take at this time the last 36 weekly payments she was to have received under a commission award. This would amount to $559.08, but with interest deducted, the actual payment was $507.43.

Supervisors said they did not feel Miss Best should be required to pay such interest, inasmuch as the county gets only 1 1/4 per cent interest on its bank deposits of tax money, but that they could not do otherwise than follow the commission's ruling.

LAPIDARISTS TO MEET AT FULLERTON

FULLERTON.—Arrangements were completed here today for the first annual conference of Southern California lapidarists, to be held at the home of Arthur C. Terrill at 208 East Commonwealth, Saturday from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The lapidarists, whose hobby is polishing stones and metals, will have on exhibition and demonstration a number of polishing saws and machines, with a large number of specimens of common and semi-precious stones polished.

Some of the stones also will be on display at the Lum and Polly show at 309 North Spadra during the jubilee celebration.

S. C. Edwards, of Colton, is chairman of the group. He will demonstrate how to put a high polish on soft materials. A talk on polishing minerals as a hobby will be given by Howard Small, Riverside adult instructor in minerals.

The Way to Balance

WITH the United States beginning to get a case of the jitters because of the long-continued unbalance of the federal treasury, it might be wise for our national leaders to consider the advice of Salmon P. Chase to Horace Greeley in 1866 discussing proposals to put our monetary system back on a gold redemption basis.

"The way to resume is to resume," wrote Mr. Chase. It took a long time, however, for congress to make up its mind to resume specie payments. Meanwhile business conditions continued unsettled, largely because of the uncertainty about the value of our currency. Finally the panic of 1873 forced a showdown. And in 1875 congress passed a law ordering resumption of specie payments to begin on Jan. 1, 1879.

Says the Encyclopedia Americana regarding this: The approach of that date was attended by great apprehension in the United States and abroad that the national treasury would be unable to meet the overwhelming demand for specie that many expected to occur. The mints were run far beyond the usual hours coining money to meet possible requirements and there was much surprise when the appointed date came, and very little currency was presented for redemption. The people were satisfied of the government's ability to pay, and gold at once fell to par.

Thus was a bad case of national jitters cured by simply applying the treatment that Mr. Chase advised 13 years before.

Today the same jittery situation is developing, it seems to us, because of the unbalanced condition of the federal budget. Fear is spreading that it may even no longer be politically possible to balance the budget, and the only way out is through wild inflation.

People are asking: Have President Roosevelt and congress the courage to do the job, or have the vested bureaucratic and political interests, created during the big spending spree, captured the government?

Certainly the day has passed when it is necessary to prime the pump anymore. Industrial production in March this year was at the same level for March, 1929. And with industry so well on its way, we do not believe that a borrow-and-spend policy is justified or even wanted by the public any longer.

We need another Chase today to tell the government that "the way to retrench is to retrench."

Otherwise fears of the national credit will grow and breed new fears. And if there is another boom and collapse, the government might find itself unable to borrow.

The time to stop the jitters is now while the wealth of our country and its political setup permits the budget to be balanced. "The way to balance is to balance."

Whom Will We Bomb?

WITH the Hindenburg disaster just a few hours in the past, we come across the recommendation of Commander Rosendahl of Lakehurst airport that the navy build more dirigibles. He says that the dirigible can be made a very effective bombing weapon.

"With high bomb capacity, its ability to throttle down its motors to scarce audibility, concealed in clouds and guided by an observer in the basket in the open sky beneath, the airship could deliver a very effective bombing attack and be on its way before being suspected."

A ship such as the ill-fated Hindenburg could carry 25 to 30 tons of bombs on a non-stop flight of 9000 miles, the commander points out.

Perhaps the navy is not building a big dirigible because it doubts the commander's claims. But we rather think his arguments are good reasons for not constructing one.

For what city 4500 miles away do we want to bomb? If we built such a war monster, every nation within that range would immediately feel suspicious. And they, too, would start building ships of the same touring capacity—which wouldn't add anything to our feeling of security.

Rosy Pink Monday

WOULDN'T it be a keen idea if every general holiday came on Monday, like Labor day, for instance? It's not only a keen idea, but perfectly feasible, says Henry Morton Robinson, writing in the Reader's Digest.

Even now, whenever a holiday like Christmas or Fourth of July falls on Sunday, we are accustomed to celebrating the day officially on Monday. And everybody gets a double benefit from the extra relaxation and extra playtime, whereas a single mid-week day off is likely to be feverish, exhausting and demoralizing.

There ought not to be any serious opposition to the proposal to shift the official observance of holidays to the Monday following the actual date. Business would certainly favor it, as against the present system of demoralizing mid-week holidays; farmers would not be inconvenienced, as they are by daylight saving where it is operative; and churches ought to welcome an idea which would make it possible always to observe the sacred character of Christmas on a Sunday, leaving more mundane observances to Monday.

Launching the Graduate

COMMENCEMENT time is near and the newspaper columnists soon will be dragging out the old one about the hopeful young graduate trudging from office to office with a diploma under his arm vainly trying to land a job as second assistant office boy.

But the joke will lose part of its point so far as Santa Ana Junior college grads are concerned, for the placement bureau there reports that it has already secured work for five students and jobs are in sight for that many more.

Time was when educators thought they had done their part in cramming a boy or girl full of algebra and Latin and turning him loose to make him pick out his own way. The modern method, thank goodness, is to train the youngster for a definite task in life, and then to help him get started in that particular line when he graduates. How much better for the youngster and the world!

WHIMSIES

DAY
BY DAY

With
O. O.
McINTYRE

The big and noisy nude revues included with the meal in the $2.50 dinner cabarets have proved to be the most profitable entertainment ventures on Broadway this winter. And they are seldom patronized by New Yorkers save on opening nights. The originator was N. T. G.

They are designed for and dedicated to the round hair cut visitor. The intent is a pretentious effort to create a slice of Parisian wickedness for those in town for a fling. The scantily clad corymbes are from the French shows and ventilate the co-la-la-mot coquetishly.

These excursions sound low tariffed but are often far from so. The deluxe meal, not advertised, is $3.50 and one is supposed always to order cocktails and wine or be snubbed by the waiters. The $2.50 dinner tables are too far from the stage to enjoy the show.

And every device is employed to shuck down the bank rolls of the outlanders. There are enchanting sellers of flowers, French long-legged dolls and a half dozen gin-cracks upped to ultra notches. A party of five may easily run up a check of $50.

There is something soothing about expert phrasing. I think nothing quite compares with Carl Sandburg's: "The fog came on little cat feet." On a rainy night I have found nothing equal to a re-reading of Washington Irving's "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." That description of Ichabod Crane, for instance: "He was a huge feeder and, though lank, had the dilatory powers of an anaconda."

"She was a blooming lass of fresh eighteen, plump as a partridge, ripe melting and as rosy-cheeked as one of her father's peaches." And last but not least that superb description of old Bathus Van Tassel's farm: "A great elm tree at the foot of which bubbled up a spring. The vast barn, every crevice of which seemed bursting with farm treasures. Swallows and martins skimmed, twittering about the eaves. Rows of pigeons, some swelling and cooing and hovering about their dames and a stately squadron of snowy geese riding an adjoining pond, conveying whole flocks of ducks. And guinea fowls fretting about with their peevish, discontented cries."

And gourmets will beam at Irving's fancy: "The pedagogue's mouth watered. In his devouring mind's eye he pictured every roasting pig running about with a belly full of pudding and an apple in his mouth. The pigeons were snugly put to bed in a comfortable pie and tucked in with a coverlet of crust. The geese were swimming in their own gravy."

One notices that their is almost invariably a slowing up of motorists passing through the serene locale of "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." So great was the impress of Irving's description that one almost expects to see a headless horseman tearing by. I have no fear whatever of ghosts, but passing the famous old graveyard coming from Sleepy Hollow Club I am always glad when the car is far away and beyond the scene.

I say I don't believe in spooks but a row of tombstones at night gives me the ork-orks just the same.

The Flea Circus on West 42nd street has had the longest continuous run of any amusement in the theatrical district. It has been open from noon until midnight now for nearly 20 years. The flea performers last about 10 weeks and a new company is always in waiting. The fleas are not actually trained but controlled by almost invisible wires and most people who see them come away looking a bit silly but the very idea of a trained flea has an irresistible appeal. Too, there is amusement in the engaging patter of the Professor with German dialect who calls for "Max, my favorite flea" and "Lady Lola, the queen of fleas."

Dwight Fiske, the urban chanter of ribald songs to society stay-outs, ran into a snag for a London engagement to sing for the American hordes during the coronation. He was refused permission to ventilate his oft-times double entendre lyrics. Fiske away from the piano offers no suggestion of his unusual art. Middle aged and rather stern visaged, he might be the president of the First National Bank in Keokuk.

MOPEY DICK AND THE DUKE
"Would you believe it, Duke, I weigh only 40 lbs. more than Clark Gable?"

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—The transaction has escaped notice, but the New Deal has just completed the biggest land buy since Thomas Jefferson put through the historic Louisiana Purchase.

An area as large as the state of Maryland and Connecticut combined quietly has been added to the public domain.

The vast addition covers 9,100,000 acres of submarginal land, mostly in the Great Plains region. Of the total area, the government already has assumed possession of 4,600,000 acres and legal formalities shortly will be completed for taking over the remaining 4,500,000.

Huge as the purchase is, it is only a fraction of the land that government experts say should be bought and retired from cultivation. They estimate that there are 100,000,000 acres of farm land in use on which it is not possible to raise profitable crops.

The farm tenancy bill pending in congress contains a $75,000,000 item for additional land retirement. But the economy wave is likely to trim this figure considerably.

The purchases already made exhaust a $40,000,000 fund appropriated several years ago to buy submarginal land. The government has paid an average of $4.40 an acre for it. Only a few decades ago the same land was given away with a lavish hand to the railroads and settlers.

The new public domain will be converted into national parks, forests, wildlife refuges, grazing reserves and recreational areas. Occupants of the land will be moved to other sections by the resettlement administration.

Naval experts and diplomats, familiar with the negotiations by which the Hindenburg was given U. S. landing privileges on its transatlantic trip, attribute its tragic ending to Nazi economy and a row between Dr. Hugo Eckener and Hitler.

The giant airship originally was constructed to use helium, not hydrogen. All of Dr. Eckener's plans were based on this. When he was in Washington last year he had assurance that the United States government would let him buy American helium, which is produced commercially only in the United States and Canada.

Export of helium is strictly controlled by the government for national defense. But its use in the Hindenburg on a transoceanic mail and passenger route was not considered prejudicial to the national defense, and Eckener was assured he could buy the precious gas.

The cost, however, is $75 to $100 per cubic foot, or upwards of $525,000 to inflate the Hindenburg. At this the Nazi government balked. This may bring an official denial now, but fact is that Germany is

A SHINING MARK
(San Francisco News)
Death is commonplace. Even mass disasters are headlines for only a day or two.

But now and then there occur tragedies of such drama and poignancy that they live on in the memories of men.

Such a one was the sinking of the Titanic, when the greatest steamer afloat went down with 1500 helpless humans.

Such another was the wreck of the Dunbar, outside the harbor of Sydney, a sailing ship, with its cargo of wives, daughters and brides-to-be returning from England, all dressed in their finery ready to embark into the arms of loved ones. Of that, Mark Twain wrote:

"The tale is told to every stranger that passes the spot, and it will continue to be told to all that come, for generations; but it will never grow old, custom cannot stifle it, the heartbreak that is in it cannot perish out of it."

And so Mark Twain might have written of the tragedy of the Hindenburg—a perilous and nerve-racking voyage, the buffeting of wind and thunderstorms behind, the solid land of the home port ahead, and then flames, smoke, ashes.

Howdy, folks. Gashouse Gus has just lost his job. For five years he has been second assistant toast-scraper at the Greasy Spoon restaurant, but yesterday they installed one of those darned automatic toasting machines.

"No, thanks. I want one which I can smoke myself."

Friend—How did you like those Chinese back-scratchers I sent you?

The work of the maggot is to be done synthetically. During the world war surgeons found that the larvae of the blowfly, headed more rapidly than did those which were not infected, and that there was less percentage of complications and less pus formation.

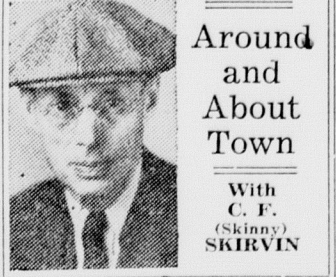

In 1929 a surgeon discovered a way to treat wounds with live maggots, but there were many disadvantages to the system. Now science has discovered that the secretion of the maggots which caused rapid healing was allantoin, and they have now discovered a way to make it synthetically. This new substance will be used to treat various wounds, ulcers and gangrene.

Some friends who watch the market quotations closely, and some others who get inside of it, tell me their actions and reactions to quotation eccentricities. Some days they believe one thing and the next day another. Well, there is one thing about market reports. While they are statistical, they are never dry or uninteresting.

I hope my county newspaper friends will discriminate between a safety campaign and a political issue. Santa Ana is only doing what every city is called upon to do, and that is to adopt measures which will cut down the loss of life. If slower time through congested areas will do it, why not adopt that method? The condition in Santa Ana had become so dangerous on Main street that pedestrians took their lives in their hands every time they crossed the street. With pedestrian signs placed at intersections, and a reduced speed, life is safer, and what's the hurry, anyway? Most of the fellows who drive through town took their lives in their hands going any place and, if they are, they have more time to get there than their driving indicates. As for the situation around the courthouse and business streets, where the space is occupied by employees and clerks and county officials well, I'm ready to agree with my county friends. If that space was devoted to business customers the parking question would be solved.

Closing of 14 New York burlesque theaters because they had become offensively indecent was not the result so much of official disapproval but due to the fight made by Cardinal Hayes who chastised the acts as having a demoralizing social influence. Mayor LaGuardia said the closing was the "beginning of the end of incorporated filth" and Commissioner Moss agreed the shows were a disgrace to the city. If they had not been patronized they would have failed. This holds good whether in New York or the smaller town. Some people have such a perverted sense of decency they have to be drawn through a sewer before they are entertained.

Wish the city council would adopt a jaywalking ordinance. I know a fellow who might live longer if it did. He crosses the street between intersections so frequently that he has become an old offender. If a fine was imposed it would cure him. This is a case where I know the fellow intimately. He's just finished writing this paragraph.

Along in 1912 when bathing beauties were not so revealing as they are today, and fan dancers had not attracted the attention they do now, Paul Chabas, of Paris, painted the picture, "September Morn." At that time the little lady received worldwide attention and invaded many a bathroom. Well, the picture still survives, but the artist died last Monday. Considerable courage in birthday painting has been made since Paul painted "September Morn." Art, as it is called, has now reached the strip stage. But isn't it noticeable that the painters devote so little time to painting Adonises?

That business man who had a disturbed stomach, a luncheon engagement and dinner appointment all the same day, had a tough time seeing the silver lining in the social horizon. When you are called upon to attack all kinds of salads and pastries and your defense is weak you might just as well arrange for a bad night and look pleasant while you are doing so.

If the "authorities" keep sending in their argument they will soon have me convinced that the January frost was just what the rancher ordered. The orchardist is to get better prices for what he is able to sell. Nippy weather enforces a degree of dormancy so the trees could take a needed vacation, there are heavy "sets" for next year, and the whole agricultural situation has improved. Boy, I like an optimist, and if I can cash in on their predictions this year I'll pay my dues in the Optimist club a year in advance.

Long Beach is poking fun at the Laguna Beach bathing suit ordinance, and then some one whispers into my ear that the Laguna Beach ordinance was taken from the Long Beach ordinance. Which, of course, suggests that "you boys better get together."

I'm glad that Great Britain has the King crowned, glad that Aimee has her lawsuit settled, I'll be glad when Wally Simpson is married to the Duke of Windsor, and if they ever find some way of getting politicians to keep their word and cut down their ever mounting tax burden, well, then the world will come to an end and maybe some of us will be glad of that.

One Man's Opinion

Nothing new under the sun? Says who?

Two Idaho prospectors believed they could better judge the probable hiding places of gold if they could see the broken, upended strata of central Idaho's mountains as the eagle sees them, from high above.

They made a compact with a mountain aviator, who is as much at home among the lofty crags as is his cousin, the eagle. The three of them went aloft, and using landmarks they knew when traveling the mountain trails, the prospectors mapped their spots.

Back on the ground, they followed their map and dug to put their judgment to the test. Finding pay ore that looked more than good, they took 24 tons of it 18 miles on pack mules, 40 miles further by truck to railroad and sent it to the smelter. They got back an assay report showing $107 in gold to each ton of ore, and several dollars more in silver.

At last reports they were dicker with a big mining outfit for a fortune each for the two prospectors and the aviator.

Carl Kitchin, for many years clerk of the Idaho senate, is the sponsor of this Robert Service-like yarn of Idaho's high mountain country.

A resident of the remote hinterland, combination farmer and miner, was killed in mid-winter when the trails were deep with snow and the thermometer was at its lowest.

It never was fully determined, Carl says, whether the mountaineer was killed by a "friend" with a hay knife, or whether he was gored by a bull.

Whatever the cause of his demise, it became the task of five of his nearest neighbors to take the body "outside" for an inquest and burial.

They built a special toboggan sled to hold the corpse and set out, the five of them, pulling and tugging on a tumpline with 40 or 50 miles to go over deep and trackless snow. Their friend's body, stiff as a poker, rode in state behind.

It was hard work, and one of the five finally evolved the theory that since they had to haul their dead friend up the steep hills he ought not to object giving them a ride on the downgrades.

So thereafter, where it was possible to guide the toboggan, the hardworking pallbearers straddled the tarpaulined corpse and scooted for the bottom of the hills. All but one. One of the five wouldn't ride. The other four, says Carl, called him a superstitious sissy.
